Raging Inferno Devours Farm Structure

—Mercury Staff Photo

The picture above was snapped minutes after a fire that gutted the huge barn on the farm of Warren B. Zern, prominent Pottstown contractor, was discovered Sunday evening. By the time the flames subsided only the stone foundation of the structure was standing. Valuable machinery and lumber stored inside the barn brought total damages to an estimated $50,000. Authorities say the blaze was of suspicious origin. An investigation by the State fire marshal's office will get underway today.

Huge Zern Barn Destroyed By Fire; 6 Firemen Felled

By ROBERT WOODS
(Mercury Staff Writer)

A spectacular fire of suspicious origin gutted the huge barn on the farm of Pottstown contractor Warren B. Zern Sunday evening. Six firemen were felled battling the blaze.

Joseph E. Tascione Jr., chief of the Ringing Hill Fire company, estimated damage at $50,000. Thousands of dollars worth of cement machinery and expensive lumber stored in the barn was destroyed.

Chief Tascione said he has reason to suspect the blaze may have been started by children. He said the State fire marshal's office will begin an investigation today.

Zern also expressed the belief the fire had been set.

"SOMEONE is responsible for that fire," the prominent businessman said. "I say that now, and I'll say it until my last breath."

Thousands of persons witnessed the holocaust. Flames shot hundreds of feet into the air at the zenith of the blaze.

The billowing cloud of black smoke that rose above the farm could be seen as far away as Macungie in Berks county.

More than 110 firemen from the North End, Ringing Hill, Sanatoga and Upper Pottsgrove Fire companies battled the blaze. Dozens of others from fire companies not summoned to the scene volunteered their help.

THE FIRE WAS discovered shortly after 7:30 p. m. It was under control 45 minutes later,

Sightseers Jam Stricken Area As Residents Start Big Clean Up

By PAUL LEVY
(Mercury Staff Writer)

Tornado stricken sections of Montgomery and Berks counties began cleaning up the debris and salvaging the Summer crops left standing in the wake of the scythe-like winds that skipped through the area early Friday evening.

Damage caused by the funnel-shaped cloud and the 100 mile per hour winds was estimated between hundreds of thousands to as high as 2½ million.

An area insurance agent gave the 2½ million estimate.

James F. Haldeman, Berks county farm agent, called the crop damage "quite extensive" and said that the corn crop was probably a total loss. Barley, wheat and second cuttings of alfalfa and hay standing in the fields, were severely damaged, he noted.

For those in the direct line of the storm, the immediate problem was getting a roof on the house.

FOR THOSE who caught only the side effects, or the heavy rain and "half-dollar" size hail that splattered the area, the weekend was spent in a clean up campaign.

Those who suffered the most severe damage — demolished barns and roofs ripped off — spoke to their insurance agents as soon as possible. Most reported they were covered "to a degree," but were unsure how soon they could expect their claims to be settled.

Friends and neighbors—and in some cases even strangers—turned out early Saturday morning in dungarees and work clothes and pitched in to help those hit by the storm.

The help given William Singer Jr., Perkiomenville RD, was typical. Friends and neighbors showed up early, helping to clean the debris that was scattered around the roofless house. Downed trees were cut and stacked, hay was placed in a neighbor's barn, and two horses that had broken out of the field during the storm were rounded up and placed in another friend's barn.

SINGER'S comment was also typical: "Friends are wonderful."

At times, the movement of equipment to the damaged farms was slowed down or halted by tens of thousands of sightseers that gawked at the damage from bumper-to-bumper traffic that crawled along Route 663, Old Route 100, Niantic road, and through the hard hit towns like Eshbach and Bally. State police were stationed at several intersections in a vain attempt to keep traffic moving along the two-lane roads that Towering thunderclouds moved east across a sunny sky, shadowing portions of the vast Silver Crest orchard.

Farther east, over the ridge from the orchard, the little village of Eshbach was bathed by sunshine.

Dr. Josef Mengele hid from the world and his war crimes 15 years, but was nabbed Saturday.

The arrest, after an attempted flight, was in Argentina. But a Pottstonian all along had an idea where the Nazi was and how he got there.

The man is Albert P. Spivack, 366 High street.

INTERSECTION IS SCENE OF TWO CRASHES

Four Persons Hurt In Separate Accidents

Four persons were injured in two separate accidents late Saturday afternoon at the intersection of Route 663 and Deep Creek road, New Hanover township.

The first mishap occurred at 4:15 o'clock when a car driven by Leon M. Waner, Pottstown Route 18, collided with one operated by Fernley Ellis, 547 Spruce street.

Waner and his wife, Dorothy, were taken to Memorial hospital in the Green Lane ambulance. Both were admitted, and both were in fair condition Sunday.

Ellis was treated for an injury to his left arm and discharged.

AN HOUR and 20 minutes after the first accident cars driven by Claude Deiley, Allentown, and Lawrence Price, Salford, collided at the same intersection.

Price suffered an injury to his left arm, but did not require medical attention.

State police at the Jeffersonville barracks investigated both accidents.

Fine Weather Follows Blast By Tornado

After Friday's storm that swept over parts of Berks and Montgomery counties, the weather settled back to normal for the weekend.

Except for a brief cold front that sent the mercury down to 58 Sunday at 5 a.m., the weather was almost perfect.

Saturday dawned bright with a low temperature of 64 at 5 a.m. which crawled up to 78 at 6 p.m. The cold front dipped the temperature but passed over by 10 a.m. Sunday when the mercury reached 71.

By 5 p.m. the mercury was at 83—its highest for Sunday. All during the weekend the sky was clear.

Today the weather will be clear with the temperature expected to reach the mid 80s. Warmer and more humid weather is due by tomorrow with thundershowers expected to develop west of Pottstown.

Tomorrow or Wednesday rain is expected.

Family Pet Gives Warning Of Tornado

Lassie is a tan and white Collie with a built-in storm warning system.

His owners, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reihman, Barto RD, first noticed the canine radar system when a severe thunderstorm hit the area shortly after they purchased the farm five years ago.

Lassie, whose age is between 15 and 18 years, came with the farm. The previous owners said that "Lassie likes the farm so much it would be a crime to take him away."

Shortly before the first storm, Lassie became sick and started sulking around the house, growling deeply and crouching in corners. Minutes after the Reihmans noticed the Collie's action, a violent storm "raffled the house." Lassie hid in a corner, his stomach heaving from side to side and his eyes white with fear.

Helping Hands Make Storm Clean Up Job a Little Easier

—Mercury Staff Photos

It was cleanup-fixup time in the area lashed by Friday's tornado—and friends, neighbors, and even strangers turned out to lend a helping hand. In top picture, the debris from the storm is piled up as the Harvey Fox farm on Barto Star route begins to lose its battlefied look. The farm is operated by Homer Hoffman, and was in the direct line of the wind funnel. The top of one silo and the roof of the barn were demolished by the wind. Among those who turned out to help were a group of Mennonites.

In lower left picture, Frank Reihman, of Barto RD poses with Lassie, a collie with a built-in storm detecting system. The dog, who is more than 15 years old, becomes ill when ever a storm is developing since his first master was killed during a tornado.

Munitions Dump Blast Rocks Havana Harbor

HAVANA (AP) — A munitions dump exploded with a shattering roar on Havana Bay Sunday night. Official police reports said two persons were killed and more than 50 injured.

The blast shook all Havana.

Unconfirmed reports said several persons were arrested on suspicion of sabotage. Authorities immediately sealed off the explosion site.

An injured soldier said there were two relatively small explosions and then the massive blast which smashed windows in buildings as far as five miles from the dump.

Officials were reticent about discussing what munitions were in the dump. A German ship last week delivered more than 40 tons of arms to Havana from Belgian suppliers.

Although police reports said only that "more than 50" persons were hurt, newsmen said they expected the total to reach at least 100. Many persons were cut by flying glass.

The explosion was expected to heighten anti-American feelings here, even though there was no immediate indication that the Cuban government would seek to hold the United States responsible as it did in the blast of the French munitions ship last March 4 in which about 100 persons were killed.

American newsmen riding through the blast-battered streets were met once or twice by shouts from balconies of "Down with the United States" and "Yankees go home."

The dump that blew up was on Cayo Cruz, a small tongue of land extending into Havana Bay from the east.

Adjacent to the dump is a garbage dump and one report circulating was that a garbage carrier was used by saboteurs to set off the blast.

The explosion littered streets with shattered glass and broken steel shutters in an area of several square miles.

The damage extended well into downtown Havana, about four miles from the scene, caving in store fronts and windows. Many persons were cut by flying glass.

At the Capri Hotel in the center of what formerly was the tourist section, more than a dozen large plate glass windows were smashed.

The first persons to reach the blast said they were amazed that more casualties were not caused in view of the widespread damage. Most of the industrial section was deserted because of the Sunday holiday, however.

A correspondent found many residents of the district moving about as though in shock, with staring eyes and blank faces.

"That blast, that blast," was all they would say. "What happened?"

One soldier taken to a hospital with serious injuries told doctors he did not know the fate of several of his companions in the guard detail at the dump.

"The blast blew me over and all I saw was smoke," he said.

For two hours after the explosion the stench of burned powder was almost overpowering.

Electric power was cut off in parts of the city, and an International League double-header was interrupted.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro, President Osvaldo Dorticos and numerous officials of the government rushed to the scene. Militiamen moved in to block off the area of damage.

Photographers from government newspapers were allowed to visit the scene but others were turned back.

The blast which came at 6:55 p.m., was felt throughout Havana.

Thousands of persons streamed toward the explosion area by car and on foot.

They were herded back by military guards and hurriedly summoned units of the people's militia.

The explosion sent a huge column of dense black smoke into the evening sky.

It attracted thousands upon thousands of Havana residents and downtown Havana was soon in a chaos as crowds attempted to reach the Cayo Cruz region.

The scene of the explosion is a sparsely settled area of Havana in which a number of government installations are located. It is a little more than a mile from where La Coubre blew up.

Powder magazines in the restricted area under military guard were blown up by some members of Castro's 26th of July Movement during the civil war against former President Fulgencio Batista.

The dump that exploded Sunday night is located just behind the Ambar Motors Co., which has been taken over by the government.

A number of warehouses in the area were damaged by the force of the explosion.

Radio programs were interrupted to send out calls for doctors, nurses and drugs.

LEADERS VIE FOR JAPAN'S TOP POSITION

Leftist Groups Plan Demonstrations Tuesday

TOKYO (AP) — Liberal Democratic party leaders, eyeing the soon-to-be-vacated post of prime minister, jockeyed for stronger position Monday while leftist groups planned more demonstrations aimed at speeding the end of Nobusuke Kishi's government.

The fanatical left-wing Zengakuren Students Assn. said it would assemble 20,000 students in Tokyo Tuesday to demand dissolution of Parliament.

Zengakuren will join Socialists, Communists and the big, red-tinged Sohyo Labor Federation July 2 and 4 for another round of mass protests against the new U.S.-Japanese security pact that authorized American bases in Japan for another decade. The leftist front hopes to bring out more than 100,000 demonstrators.

But political attention at the moment centers on a power struggle within the ruling Liberal Democratic party to succeed Kishi as prime minister.

Kishi announced his intention to resign last week, but did not indicate when. Before new parliamentary elections are called, his conservative party must choose a new party president.

The winner would become prime minister in the event of a general election victory, which is widely predicted.

Three factional leaders, aligned with Kishi during the bitter fight to ratify the security treaty, are the major contenders. The trio, all pro-Western, are Trade Minister Hayato Ikeda, 60, party vice president Bamboku Ono, 70, and the party executive board chairman, Mitsjiro Ishii, 71.

Ikeda is favored because of the reported support of the party's elder statesman, former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida.

President Returns To Capital; Calls Trip 'Pretty Good'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower returned Sunday from a "pretty good" Far Eastern trip, as he described it, and promptly turned to a backlog of government business.

While still at the airport, Eisenhower arranged with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other members of his official family a Cabinet meeting probably to be held Monday.

Then he went to the White House to catch some rest and put finishing touches on the 7:30-8 p. m. EDT radio-TV report he will make to the nation Monday night on his two-week, 23,000-mile journey to three Asian countries.

The President was reported prepared to picture as a success his goodwill visits to the Philippines, Formosa, Korea and U.S.-held Okinawa, and to blame the cancellation of his Japan stop on tne Communists. He also was reported primed to defend administration foreign policy actions against mounting criticism from Democrats.

The big orange-and-silver military jet transport plane carrying the presidential party touched down at Andrews Air Force Base at 9 a.m. after a 10-hour, 600 m.p.h. flight from Honolulu with a refueling stopover at Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

Eisenhower, who spent the last six days golfing and relaxing in Hawaii en route home, was tanned and jovial as he alighted from the plane.

The chief executive shook hands and exchanged greetings with the welcoming delegation of about 50 top officials including Nixon, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and diplomats representing the countries he had just visited.

"How was your trip, Mr. President?" a reporter called out.

"Oh, pretty good," Eisenhower replied.

Eisenhower then talked to Nixon, Herter and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson about setting up a Cabinet meeting. Other Cabinet members including Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton and Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield were on hand for the discussion.

Eisenhower faced a heavy domestic workload with Congress churning out legislation in its adjournment push and the political conventions starting in two weeks.

Fights with Democratic legislators loomed over election year bills on medical care for the aged, an upward revision of the minimum wage law and increasing federal pay.

Domestic friction mounted too over the administration's conduct of foreign affairs.

Rockefeller Refuses to Sign Pledge Backing Nixon Candidacy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller stuck to his hard-to-get role in Republican politics Sunday when he refused to pledge support to the presidential candidacy of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

An effort was made at the National Governors' Conference in Glacier Park, Mont., to get Rockefeller to join other Republican governors in a written pledge of "full and loyal support" to Nixon. But the New Yorker politely parried the maneuver.

Thus some uncertainty persisted in the Republican camp while Democratic presidential aspirants stepped up efforts to corral delegates for their nominating convention now only about two weeks away.

The week's hardest political news probably will come Tuesday when North Dakota elects a successor to the late Republican Sen. William F. Langer. It's been a hot fight with the policies of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson at the fore and the outcome will be watched for clues to GOP prospects in the farm belt.

The preliminaries to the governors' annual talkfest produced these developments:

1. Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois called on all Republicans to stop quibbling and unite behind Nixon. Govs. Harold W. Handley of Indiana and J. Hugo Aronson of Montana then came up with the written pledge idea which Rockefeller declined to indorse. The New Yorker has been critical of some Eisenhower administration policies and what he calls Nixon's refusal to speak out clearly on issues.

2. Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams told a news conference he had heard that Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas had threatened to block a medical health bill for oldsters if Williams came out in support of the presidential ambitions of Sen. John F. Kennedy, Massachusetts democrat. Kennedy leads the delegate parade in which Johnson is runnerup at present.

Williams said he went ahead with his endorsement, anyway, and estimates that 42 of Michigan's 51 convention votes will go to Kennedy. Answering a question, Williams said he is not charging "political blackmail" to Johnson but added, "I assume he uses what weapons are available to him."

Texas Gov. Price Daniel promptly called Williams' report "pure fabrication." "

Two Foot Rain Brings Floods On Texas Coast

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) Torrential downpours of more than two feet sent flood waters rushing over a wide section of the middle Texas coast Sunday and forced many persons in low-lying areas to evacuate their homes.

At least four persons died as a result of the steady downpours since a tropical disturbance moved inland from the Gulf of Mexico late Thursday. Four other persons are missing and presumed dead.

One crewman aboard a shrimper was drowned when the craft was sunk during a squall as the tropical storm moved inland. Two other crewmen are missing and are presumed drowned. Two Latin-American men were missing after their car was washed into flooded York Creek near Seguin.

William E. Hamm, 32, Houston fireman drowned when he fell into flooded Braes Bayou in Houston. Lee McKee, 24, drowned when his boat overturned in the same swollen stream. And a Negro youth, Calvin Joseph, 16, drowned while wading in the Houston floodwaters.

The heaviest rainfall was at Port Lavaca where 27.31 inches fell from late Thursday until Saturday evening. Of this amount 16.50 inches fell between 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

The rains tapered off late Sunday and the U.S. Weather Bureau said they should end by Monday. However, because of heavy runoffs, flood threats were expected to continue for a number of days.

The heavy tropical rains Sunday extended from central Texas coast northward to the Red River. Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy in the southeastern half of the state and clear in west Texas and the upper Panhandle. Afternoon temperatures ranged from 72 at Houston and Palacios to 96 at El Paso.

Astronaut Project Gains Momentum With Series of Launchings Scheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The United States is about to begin a big push to send an American astronaut to the fringes of space by the end of this year and into orbit sometime in 1961.

space capsule aloft on a critical re-entry test in July. A parade of Atlas-and Redstone-boosted capsules will follow as Project Mercury drives toward its climatic moments.

Success could open the way for manned flight to the moon and other planets.

Problems of designing and instrumenting the capsule have delayed Project Mercury several months. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration —after testing many boiler-plate models—believes it now has a suitable space chamber.

NASA has ordered 20 capsules. Twelve will be carried skyward by Atlasses, eight by Redstones. Seven or eight of the launchings are scheduled in the next six moments.

The Atlas and Redstone firings will be interspersed. Early shots will subject the 1½-ton capsule to a variety of orbital and suborbital trajectories to qualify the capsule.

The first Atlas shot will test the chamber under the worst possible type of re-entry, with the capsule making a blazing plunge through the earth's atmosphere from an altitude of 140 miles with a peak acceleration of 19 G's.

If this and subsequent tests work well, an Atlas will propel one of the capsules, perhaps bearing a chimpanzee, into orbit next October or November. After three global passes at a planned altitude of 130 miles, breaking rockets will slow down the space vehicle and it will drop into the Atlantic Ocean near Puerto Rico. This is the same course planned for the first manned orbital flight.

The initial Redstone launching probably will come in August. This smaller rocket will carry one of the capsules to an altitude of

A powerful Atlas missile is being readied to hurl an empty 100 miles and deposit it in the ocean about 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range. Next a chimpanzee and then an astronaut trip is slated for late fall.

Meanwhile, Project Mercury support officials—and the seven astronauts — are working hard to make the manned flights about the best-rehearsed events in history.

Maj. Gen. Leighton I. Davis, commander of the Air Force Missile Test Center, is expected to be named soon as Defense Department representative for Mercury support operations, responsible for all military forces, facilities and assets assigned to the program.

This includes a vast network of tracking, telemetry, communications and monitoring facilities of the Atlantic missile range as well as other military-operated bases, ships, ranges and communications facilities.

Capt. James G. Franklin, commander of the Naval Ordnance Test Unit at Cape Canaveral, has been named deputy for recovery operations.

The Navy's Destroyer Flotilla 4, Norfolk, Va., will station a string of recovery ships in the Atlantic under the capsule's planned flight path and in the intended impact zone.

Other navy ships will be located around the world, mainly as tracking stations in remote ocean areas.

The bio-astronautics — or space medicine—phase of the project is headed by Col. George M. Knauf, staff surgeon at the Air Force Missile Test Center.

Knauf's staff is training a team of space surgeons—more than 100 of whom will be stationed around the world for the orbital flight. The space medics, from all three military services, are receiving their schooling in special classes. A group of civilian and military medical experts are acting as consultants.

Medics will be located at each tracking station to keep a close watch on the astronaut's physical condition as he spins over their particular areas.

Sensing devices in the astronaut's pressurized suit will relay information on such things as heartbeat, respiration, pulse and coordination. The medic will converse with the astronaut through a two-way voice communications system.

Ferris Wheel Breaks; Riders Are Rescued

JERSEY SHORE, Pa., (AP) — Some 30 children and adults went for an unexpected ride at a carnival Saturday night when a ferris wheel shaft broke and the machine slanted over at a precarious angle.

They clung to their seats for up to an hour and a half as firemen maneuvered an aerial ladder and carried them down, one by one.

One man, Allan R. Miller, 35, of Jersey Shore fainted as a fireman carried him down. Miller handed his infant daughter, Jane, about 2, to firemen before being brought down himself.

Frederick Baye, 34, was carried down in a stretcher after he also had handed an infant to rescuers. Baye was admitted to Jersey Shore hospital. A hospital spokesman said Baye's legs became temporarily paralyzed when a previous leg injury was aggravated.

The Independent Fire company of Jersey Shore, sponsors of the carnival, called in Lock Haven firemen for the aerial ladder to help in the rescue operations.

Congressmen Suggest Selling Carrier

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Who should fly the planes from the Minas Gerais, Brazil's first aircraft carrier, when she is put in service in September?

The navy, says the Navy Ministry. But the air force claims it has the only pilots qualified for the job. One group of congressmen has recommended that the dispute be settled by selling the carrier.

Quemoy Lull Continues

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The lull on the China offshore island front entered in its seventh day Sunday. The Communists have not fired at the Quemoy complex since their massive bombardment last Monday to show their contempt for President Eisenhower's Formosa visit.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT:
Better Health Through Knowledge
ESR Test
● Pain
● Arthritis
● Another Doctor

Q. Not long ago I received a bill from a doctor. Among others, there was a charge for an ESR test. What sort of test is this?
A. The abbreviation stands for erythrocyte (red blood cell) sedimentation rate. When blood to which an anticlotting substance has been added is allowed to stand in an upright tube, the red cells gradually settle to the bottom. The rate of settling is altered in certain diseases. A normal sedimentation rate does not necessarily exclude disease, but a fast rate of settling shows that further study is desirable.

Q. Are blondes more sensitive to pain than brunettes?
A. We have no information regarding the relative sensitivity to pain of blondes and brunettes. However, an Australian dentist made a study of eye color and the reaction to pain and found that blue-eyed patients complained very little. The sensitivity to dental pain increased through the blue-grey, green-grey, green, hazel, light brown and dark brown range.

Q. I read in a magazine that bee venom injections cure arthritis. Is this true?
A. Bee venom injections have been tried in cases of arthritis but there is no good medical evidence that such treatment provides satisfactory relief.

Q. I have been going to a doctor for about a year. He has given me medicine for my stomach but it hasn't helped. Should I change doctors? Maybe I can find one who can get to the bottom of my trouble.
A. You have a perfect right to change doctors but don't "shop around." "Shopping" for a doctor may be expensive and is very unlikely to produce results. Stay with the physician who knows your case. The more he finds out about you the better are your chances for successful treatment. Any patient can and should expect his doctor to suggest that he see a specialist, if one is needed. You may properly request of your doctor that another doctor be called in on your case. But don't "shop."

Bring your prescriptions to us for professional service promptly rendered at reasonable cost.

Meters Installed to Test Drivers

CARLISLE, England (AP) — Fourteen public houses owned by the British government are installing drink meters to tell car drivers when they've had enough.

The meters test reaction speeds. The driver drops a coin in the meter, then tries to stop the coin by pressing a button.

If he can stop it in ess than .12 of a second he gets the coin back. If not, he loses the coin—and gets a warning that his reactions have slowed up.

The machines are approved by Britain's Royal Society for Prevention of Accidents, though not by some police officers.

Sidney Ballance, chief constable of neighboring Barrow-in-Furness, called them a menace. He said they will encourage drivers to drink more to test their capacity.

Similar machines have been in some British pubs for several months.

Some people doubt the drink meters' efficiency.

Peter Johnson, a young Royal Air Force officer, wrote to the Observer Sunday to say he and several other young pilots tried out the machines and found their reactions improving as they had more to drink.

Fidel Castro Calls Movies 'Horrible'

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro lashed out Sunday at what he called horrible Hollywood films appearing on Cuban movie screens.

The Prime Minister proposed to equip every Cuban elementary school with TV sets and transmit specialized educational and entertainment films from a central station as a substitute.

Speaking on the revolutionary government's "Popular University" television program, Castro said he has had time to see only two motion pictures recently and both were terrible.

"In one a brother killed a brother," he said, "and in the other a father killed his son."

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — Floyd Roshon has made sure he'll have the salt and pepper shakers when he wants them at the table.

English Vicar Forgives Captors

CODNOR, England (AP) — An Anglican vicar who once worked on the Burma "railroad of death" as a prisoner of the Japanese Sunday introduced a new curate to his congregation—a Japanese.

The Rev. William Paul Miller presented the Rev. John Kanoh as his assistant. Kanoh and his family come from Hiroshima.

"I am sure you will welcome our new curate as you would any other Christian minister," said the Rev. Mr. Miller. "I certainly feel no bitterness toward my captors. I see no reason why others should feel any antagonism toward the Japanese."

The vicar was an army corporal when he was captured. He worked on the railroad where 61,000 prisoners died. Kanoh was a schoolboy during the war.

Shillington Girl Is Chosen Miss Pennsylvania 1960

West Chester, (AP — For 19-year-old Priscilla Mae Hendricks, a green-eyed beauty from Shillington, it was a dream come true. The Miss Greater Reading was named Miss Pennsylvania Saturday night from among five finalists.

"I suppose every girl has the dream of winning this contest but it sure turns out a surprise when you come out number one," She said shortly after the crowning ceremonies.

Miss Lois Janet Piercy, last year's Miss Pennsylvania, placed the crown on Miss Hendricks' brown hair as 1000 persons watched at the West Chester High school auditorium. Her talent in the pageant was her art work.

Miss Hendricks, who is 5-7, weighs 128 and measures 36-24-35, will receive a $1000 scholarship and various other prizes in addition to representing Pennsylvania in the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City in September.

And she vowed that "I'll do my best for Pennsylvania."

But at the same time she pointed out that she will go through with her plans to study veterinary medicine by entering the University of Pennsylvania in 1961 after touring the states this year.

Nothing comes by chance, for in all the wide universe there is absolutely no such thing as chance. We bring whatever comes. Are we not satisfied with effects, the results? The thing then to do is to change the causes.

—(Ralph Waldo Trine)

The Right to Life

(See editorial cartoon, "Speaking to You?")

One hundred and 84 years ago members of the Continental Congress met in Philadelphia and affixed their signatures to a document declaring it to be self evident that all men are endowed with certain unalienable rights.

On July 4th this year, millions of Americans will leave their homes to celebrate that event and to exercise one of those rights—the pursuit of happiness.

In the pursuit hundreds of Americans will lose the vastly more precious right of life.

Thousands more will be deprived of liberty through crippling injuries that will confine them to hospital or home, many of them permanently.

Since 1776, eight wars have been fought to preserve for you the rights proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence.

On this 184th anniversary, do your part to preserve them for others.

Drive carefully.
Swim carefully.
Play carefully.

Make certain that you are not the cause of any other American losing his life, his liberty, or his ability to pursue happiness on a holiday weekend.

Without Compulsion

Private health insurance in the United States is well on the way toward accomplishing what many experts in the field of social security stated on innumerable occasions was impossible—namely, near universal coverage of the whole population.

That is the principal finding of a new study, Voluntary Health Insurance in the United States, which has been released by the American Enterprise association.

Its authors are distinguished authorities—Dr. W. Glenn Campbell, director of the Hoover Institution of War, Revolution and Peace, and his wife, Dr. Rita R. Campbell, a former member of the Radcliffe and Tufts college faculties and a former staff economist on the House ways and means committee.

Some of the most pertinent conclusions reached in the study, in view of current legislative proposals, have to do with the health care of the aged.

The authors state "Based on the extensive evidence examined in this study, it seems clear that a substantial majority of today's aged can afford to pay for health insurance and that in the future the percentage will be even higher."

That being the case, it certainly seems that whatever health care problems aged people face can be solved without proposed blanket-type federal legislation which would give taxpayer-paid care to social security beneficiaries, at an initial cost of $2 billion a year and an unknown ultimate cost, and which would be an entering wedge to socialized medicine.

The authors describe the growth of private health insurance as "spectacular" and "a striking example of the unparalled contributions that have been made to American life by voluntary and cooperative effort."

There has also been a great increase in the kind and amount of medical expense thus covered.

The needed job is being done—and well done—without compulsion.

Supremacy Isn't Leadership

World leadership may be slipping from the United States due to "the deteriorating moral fiber of our people."

That warning came from the commencement speaker at Aquinas college in Grand Rapids—Albert R. Beatty, assistant vice president of the Association of American Railroads.

He went on to draw this important distinction between world supremacy and world leadership: "World supremacy is obtained and maintained largely by military might and worldly riches. World leadership comes from national character, which, in turn, inspires trust and confidence on the part of other peoples. When national character deteriorates, leadership wanes. As leadership is threatened, so is world supremacy."

Mr. Beatty was speaking to young people just starting out in life—a cross section of the young people who will determine what the future of this nation is to be.

If they put their faith solely in material values and material advancement that future will be bleak indeed.

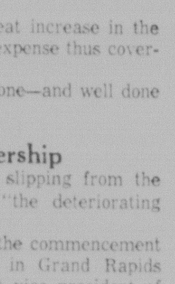

For, to quote him once more, "a nation is no stronger than the morality and faith of its people."

Retirement a Living Death?

Perverse Man

To the Editor: Recently, sociologists, psychologists and other experts who concern themselves about our mental health even when we don't know enough to ask them to do so have been studying ways to save people from retirement.

To many individuals, it seems, their jobs—or just the diversion of work—have become so identified with life itself that being retired amounts to being sentenced to a living death.

This surely is a measure of just how far man has fallen from Paradise.

For when Adam and Eve sinned and were driven from the Garden of Eden, one of the burdens laid on Adam was: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground."

Adam, in other words, was condemned to work for a living in contrast with his previous life of ease in Eden.

In the context of Genesis 3:19 and according to widely held beliefs in some earlier periods of our history, working for a living was a curse, or at least a very unhappy fate.

But not so today, apparently. No matter how well their financial needs are provided for, no matter how available the amenities of life, many men cannot stand to be liberated from the burden of work.

How far, indeed, mixed up modern man has fallen!

Limerick READY TO QUIT

Doesn't Favor Cut

To the Editor: Why cut the work week from 40 hours down to 30 or 35 hours?

Wouldn't prices that are now $30 and $35 then go up to $40?

Wouldn't more people then take second jobs and work 60 or 80 hours a week?

Pottstown WORKER

40-Year-Old Just Can't Win

To the Editor: An M.D. predicts that shortly the average life span will reach 100 years, and that people will work until they die.

If this happens, men in their 40s will be refused employment because of being too young rather than too old, as now.

Pottstown D.I.R.E.

A Blessing?

To the Editor: Frustrated, ("Ever Use Sledge Hammer?" Readers Say, June 24,):

A year from now, when you are drinking your drainage, you will curse the stinker who sold you a half acre of ground; and bless the rocks for the drainage they afford you.

Pottstown RD 2 A COUNTRY WOMAN

Time to Reassess Stand

To the Editor: Every time we have had the head of another country as a visitor, regardless of our personal feelings, we have shown him the utmost couresty.

We've been spending billions of dollars more on foreign aid than any other country, and what good is it doing? We seem to have lost the respect of half the world.

I thing it is time for a sharp look at our foreign aid program and international policy.

The government is spending money like a "drunken sailor". And, as the "sailor" gains only "pseudo" friends who laugh behind his back while they enjoy his money, so is it with our government.

Collegeville RD J. T. KLINE

A Softer Generation

To the Editor: I can't agree with the fellows who tell us cholesterol is the cause of coronary heart attacks.

Sixty years ago the average family had a frozen hog in the woodshed in the Wintertime.

The diet was pork sausage for breakfast, pork steaw fried with all the fat for dinner and supper.

But there were no sudden deaths from heart attacks.

They began when the automobile became popular.

We are getting soft.

The Voice of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Gossip in Gotham

ERROLL GARNER has served Columbia Records with an injunction restraining the disc company from rushing out "left over" sides which they released despite his protests. Erroll considers A and R man Mitch Miller the villain of the drama and is conferring with his lawyers about the possibility of a six-figure lawsuit.

The political campaign promises to be livelier than usual in Philadelphia. A sound truck is making the rounds there bellowing "Frank Sinatra for President".

Liz Renay is in town, and don't think she isn't being watched—not just because she's an eyeful, but because she's Mickey Cohen's sweetie and more than one branch of the law considers her frightfully interesting.

Francoise Sagan's new romantic interest is another member of the Paris literati, young novelist Bernard Franck.

The current gag along Broadway has it that Ingemar Johansson held his title for "one year, six days and three Dinah Shore shows."

RICHARD BURTON, who was to have starred in a television drama by John Osborne, exited with a few pithy comments, including: "it would have been just too much for television audiences. I used to consider Osborne such an important writer but now I think he's run out of things to be angry about. These days he seems to be more interested in improving his physique. He lifts weights every day, you know." (Meeow!).

Larry Kert, who was so good in the Broadway version of "West Side Story," is understandably depressed because the moviemakers have chosen someone else to play his role in the film.

Those traveling sisters, Rosalind Russell and Mrs. Chester La Roche, caught up on local and international news at the Colony the other day. Mrs. La Roche was just back from a four-month tour of the Far East; Roz was about to catch the Queen Elizabeth for Europe.

THERE'S-a-little-ham-in-all-of-us Department: Elwood M. Rich, a judge of the Municipal court of Riverside, Calif., is offering himself as an actor to the Hollywood agents. His pitch is:

"If at any time you need a professional judge to accurately portray the role of a judge in entertainment productions, with proper attention given to certain details, I could with propriety do so.

"Only an able professional judge can realistically and effectually portray the personality, demeanor, spontaneous reaction, knowledge and procedure of a real judge, for these have become ingrained into his nature from his years of experience. . ."

Could Stanislavsky have said it better?

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

LENA G., aged 19, is an attractive college coed.

"But, Dr. Crane, my life is miserable," she said, and the tears came to her eyes.

"I blush at the slightest provocation. Whenever I am in a crowd, if the conversation turns my way, I become so self-conscious I can feel my skin growing warm and red.

"The more I feel the blush forming, the worse it becomes. And if a boy talks to me, I always turn as red as a beet.

"To make matters worse, the boys like to tease me about it, and this increases my blushing even more than ever.

"So, I have been refusing dates and party invitations lately, but I am not happy alone while the others are having a grand time. What can I do?"

BLUSHING IS one of those nuisance habits that form when we are in a social situation and feel unduly nervous or embarrassed.

It is a first cousin of stuttering, trembling hands, spastic colitis, social nausea and vomiting, as well as the excessive desire to empty the bladder when on a date.

All of these nuisance habits seem to take almost fiendish delight in enslaving their victims.

They like to remain in the focus of attention, for this increases their dominance of the one whom they have afflicted.

Lena's blushing thus has become a dictator. Medically, it consists of a sudden dilation of the blood vessels in the skin.

LENA ONCE mispronounced a rather common word in grammar school. Everybody laughed. She felt embarrassed. Her face flushed.

"Look at her blush," teased the boy who sat behind her.

This directed her conscious attention to this normally involuntary act by which the vessels of the skin relax and thus permit extra blood to accumulate there, thus giving the skin its reddish tint or blush.

For the ensuing six years, Lena has permitted this blushing to dominate her brain and upset her happiness when she is in a crowd of people.

She has allowed her emotions and a tiny "segmental" habit concerning the blood vessels of the neck and face, to mutiny against the normal dominance of the brain.

Never permit such mutiny. Always keep your brain on the throne, and let it dictate the behavior of your organs or emotions.

Inside Television

By EVE STARR

STARR REPORT: A fate worse than death—TV reruns into the Fall season—has been averted by the settlement of the 20-week writers' strike against the major TV film production companies.

Most producers could not have met the deadlines for new Fall shows after July 1, a factor which doubtless was taken into consideration by the striking writers.

Now that we're assured of a fresh new crop of shows, just what will we be getting?

From the looks of the network schedules, it will simply be more of the same, whether new show or old. There will be as of this writing, a total of 41 new series on the air. Only three of them, fortunately, will be Westerns. The rest consist of comedies, adventure and private eye series.

A TOUCH OF regularly scheduled culture is offered by NBC's "America's Future" (replacing "World Wide 60") and ABC's ambitious series based on the life of Sir Winston Churchill.

Locally at any rate, one new series has jumped the gun on the approaching Fall season. It is Screen Gems' hour-long taped documentary series called "Medicine 1960."

Watching it for the second time, last Sunday night, followed by the "Chevy Mystery Show," I came to the conclusion that watching a film of a brain surgeon in action is far more exciting and rewarding than watching a parcel of actors grimacing their way through a quickly-rehearsed live TV drama.

THE MYSTERY in question had a star (Diana Lynn), a top writer (Gore Vidal), a well-known host (Walter Slezak) and all the advantages of "living color."

"Medicine 1960" starred a couple of unknown doctors, an unknown patient and was telecast in somber black-and-white. I don't know quite what the definition of "entertainment" is supposed to be these days.

The doctors did not sing or dance. They spoke their lines like amateurs on try-out night. The woman patient was not a Hollywood beauty.

Yet the entire hour was gripping, fascinating, stimulating and uplifting. Infinitely more so than the mystery show, infinitely more so than "Hawaiian Eye" or "Bat Masterson" or any one of three dozen other shows that come under the general heading of entertainment.

Interpreting The News

Ezra Taft Benson Casts His Shadow

By ARTHUR EDSON
(Associated Press Observer)

Ezra Taft Benson, who hasn't even been in North Dakota for a couple of years, casts a long and possibly fateful shadow over its special senatorial election Tuesday.

Gov. John E. Davis, a Republican, and Rep. Quentin N. Burdick (D-ND) are running for the seat left vacant by the death of Sen. William Langer (R-ND).

And Agriculture Secretary Benson often seems to be playing a more important role in the campaign than either of them.

Somewhere in the state, there must be someone who likes Benson, who thinks he has a nice and attractive family, who even thinks maybe he's doing as well as could be expected with a complicated farm problem that is further complicated by politics.

* * *

But if he's there, he's keeping quiet in this election.

The anti-Benson feeling crops up even at Republican gatherings.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic GOP meetings was at Minot last Monday, to hear Vice President Richard M. Nixon speak for Davis.

An Indian on the program was trying to explain how his tribe feels about the Indian program.

"You know how you farmers feel about Benson," he said.

There were immediate boos for Benson.

Mrs. Nixon looked shocked. Nixon, a political realist, remained unmoved.

Move across the state to Lisbon, and listen to Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND) make his pitch for Davis.

As he does he reminds everyone that he's always fought Benson. About the best he can do in making any political hay is to say that the Democrats haven't done much about solving the farm problem either.

Or talk to Mark Andrews, the Republican national committeeman, a prosperous farmer who, at 34, is considered by many a real comer in this state's politics.

"Do you realize," Andrews asks bitterly, "that in 1952 this was the most Republican state in the nation? Even more so than Vermont? I think we got around 74 per cent of the vote, and there were only three Democrats in the State Legislature."

And now? In the State Senate, with 49 members, the Democrats have 18. In the House, with 113 members, the Democrats have 49.

Who is responsible for this amazing Democratic surge? Who helped to consolidate the opposition so that the old Nonpartisan League after 40 years of running its candidates in Republican primaries, switched over to the Democrats in 1956?

"Benson," Andrews says.

Democrats have a campaign sticker that especially nettles Republicans. It merely says: "Beat Benson with Burdick."

ALL AROUND THE TOWN

★ ARE YOU A WALKER—Walking as a means of getting from here to there may be almost obsolete, but walking for pleasure is growing in popularity, even though you don't hear of Pottstonians taking hikes. A 69-year-old grandmother not long ago completed her second hike along the 2025-mile Appalachian trail. She explained briskly, "There were some things I didn't see the first time." O woman doctor who walked the length of Britain, setting off a stampede of long-distance hiking there now is walking across the United States. Soon after her marathon, about 700 persons undertook an 891-mile journey from John o' Groats to Land's End. A handful finished the trek. Her chief rivals, two British Army sergeants just set a new record in walking from the Pacific coast to New York. . . .

EVERY WEEKEND, hiking clubs gather for outings on scenic trails in the United States. Some clubs number as many as 800 members, who work to clear new paths and maintain old ones. In Great Britain the Ramblers' association has persuaded Parliament to protect public rights of way along an elaborate network of footpaths. Walking for health has a long history. Hippocrates prescribed early-morning walks to prevent emotional disturbances, hallucinations, and the expansion of the waistline. . .

★ WALKING for pleasure, however, is a relatively recent pastime. Only a few eccentrics walked long distances for the joy of it. The character in Congreve's "Way of the World" who said, "I nauseate walking" summed up the early 18th-century view of pedestrianism. The ramblings of William Wordsworth and other literary men in England's Lake District helped popularize walking and make it respectable, though for many years English walkers carried umbrellas to indicate they were gentlemen and not tramps. The all-time champion literary pedestrian probably is Wordsworth, who had trekked 180-000 miles by the time he was 65. He thought nothing of hiking 15 miles across the mountains to take tea with a friend. To Wordsworth, walking was a more natural condition than reclining, sitting, or standing, and he composed much of his poetry afoot. . . .

PROFESSIONAL walking matches were popular in the 19th century. Foster Powell, a famous pedestrian, or "ped", as the professionals were called, was immortalized in an epitaph that read: "For quick ideas, some we praise, And men of talents meet; But this man's fame—and fame it was, Lay wholly in his Feet." Captain Robert Barclay, another famed ped, reached the apex of his ambulatory career in 1809 when he logged 1000 miles in 1000 successive hours. He fortified himself with four meals a day, including a breakfast of roasted fowl, bread and butter, a pint of strong ale, and two cups of tea. . . .

★ IN THE UNITED STATES, six-day walking contests and transcontinental hikes aroused public interest after the Civil War. In 1909 a 70-year-old man walked from New York to California and back in 182 days. Though present-day walkers prefer the country, one couple has systematically trod all the sidewalks of New York City. Ironically, Ernest Marples, Minister of Transport in Great Britian, who is charged with keeping rail and road traffic moving, is one of that country's most avid walkers. Mrs. Marples said recently that she and her husband often walk in London because of traffic congestion. Who is Pottstown's greatest walker?

Your Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SINCE a good many of us will be troubled by some form of arthritis as we grow older, let's get prepared to combat it as well as we can.

And let's face the facts. As yet we have no cure for this disease which has plagued mankind throughout history.

Usually, however, we can ease any pain and prevent disability, providing we seek medical help at the proper time.

The best way to combat any disease such as this is to know as much about it as we can. So let me explain a few things.

Many persons speak about rheumatism and arthritis interchangeably. Yet, there is a difference.

Rheumatism, you see, is not one disease, but a whole group of disorders which affect the joints and the muscles.

Generally, we refer to mild aches and pains as rheumatism. We reserve the use of the word arthritis for the more serious forms of joint inflammation.

There are different forms of arthritis, too, the most common types being oseo-arthritis and rheumatoid arthritis.

Osteo-arthritis is generally the result of aging and most persons over 60 have it to some degree. Although the joint cartilage degenerates, it usually is not disabling. It is, however, somewhat painful.

Rheumatoid arthritis is much more serious and, fortunately, not as common as osteo-arthritis. It attacks three times as many women as men and usually strikes between the ages of 35 and 50.

It affects the joints, muscles and sometimes the eyes, heart, spleen and lymph glands. Crippling and deformity sometimes result from severe cases.

The symptoms to watch for are fatigue, loss of appetite and weight, general weakness, swelling in the joints and muscle aches and inflammation.

Although we have no scientific proof that arthritis is inherited, it does seem to run in families. So if there is history of arthritis in your family, see a doctor at the first sign of any symptom.

We have no scientific wonder drug to cure arthritis, but through the use of ACTH, cortisone and other related steroids and gold compounds we can often check swelling and inflamation to a dramatic degree.

Heat treatments with moist towels, tub baths or electric pads are usually advised to ease the pain of rheumatoid arthritis.

Educators Deplore Substandard Teaching In Specialized Fields

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—You wouldn't ask a dentist to remove your appendix. You wouldn't let a blacksmith fix your watch. When you want a suit of clothes, you don't hurry down to the nearest tent maker.

But chances are, a group of educators said you are not nearly so discriminating in the education of your children.

As a prime example, delegates to the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards pointed to the rapid spread of foreign language instruction in the nation's grade schools.

"More than 800,000 children are getting regular instructions in a foreign language this year," said Prof. Elson Hocking of Purdue University. "Obviously many of these children are getting substandard instruction because their teachers are not properly prepared.

"Poor instruction is worse than no instruction at all. If the teaching is inadequate, the program never should be started.

"But the movement has caught fire nationally. There is tremendous pressure on the schools from parents, and from parent-teacher organizations. And the entire program may just collapse someday because of inadequate results."

The same public pressures are applied in other areas, in demands for more physics, more chemistry, more mathematics. The demand is outrunning the supply of qualified teachers.

When teachers are asked to step outside their field of specialization the result may be poor teaching and irreparable harm to students.

"The mis-assignments of teachers is not as widespread as many people think,' said Bill Sampson, a teacher at Southern Oregon College. "But the examples we do see are often so horrendous they are blown up all out of proportion.

"There aren't enough good teachers to go around, and when a school principle or superintendent is making up his assignments he has to do the best he can. He has to ask the football coach to teach physics, the history teacher to take a class in English.

"The only alternative is to drop the course from the school program, and that's no solution either.

"Particularly here in the West we have many small high schools with only three or four teachers. Those teachers can't be oertectly prepared in all the courses a school must offer. You just do the best you can."

Bees Besiege Retired Couple

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A retired couple are prisoners in their own home. For three weeks Mr. and Mrs. Allen S. Vaughan have been besieged by bees.

It began when part of a swarm found a hole andl took up residence between the inside and outside wall of the breakfast nook.

Annoyed by the constant buzzing, Vaughan sealed up the hole with cement. But that's when his troubles really began.

"It wasn't until about a day later that I realized what I had done. I had sealed the queen bee and about half the colony in my wall. The rest of the colony is on the loose, and they want in—bad."

Whenever the Vaughans make a noise in their breakfast room, the queenless half of the colony comes swooping over the treetops to attack the house. That's not all. They keep a watch on the doors—and the Vaughans have taken to staying in all day.

Vaughan has tried spraying the bees with insecticide, scalding water and several commercial bug bombs. Didn't work.

Experts tell him just to be patient and wait for the bees to die.

"I've been patient—I've waited three weeks," he sighed. "I want to mow my lawn, pick my apricots and spray my orchard."

REV. VERNON STOOP JR.

Pastor Outlines Hardships of Age

Rev. Stoop Continues Series; Names 5 Great Problems Facing the Elderly

The topic, "When Are You Too Old?," was taken by the Rev. Vernon Stoop Jr., Sunday for his second sermon in a series of 14 dealing with basic social problems of our day.

The Rev. Stoop, pastor of the Niantic-Sassamansville charge of the United Church of Christ, opened the series eight days ago with a detailed discussion of the marriage-divorce problem. Next Sunday he will ask his congregation, "Do We Have a National Purpose?"

Sunday's talk was in connection with the problems of the aging in American society.

The minister opened his talk by laying a statistical background, presented five major problems facing the aged, and concluded by suggesting possible solutions to the problems.

HE SAID, "In our day and age scientists speak of the day in the not too distant future when the average person will reach the age of 100. Presently we are approaching the average of 70, which is considerably higher than the average top age of not too many years ago.

"What do statistics tell us about aging? They inform us that at the present time there are 15 million people in our country above 65 years of age, or one citizen out of 12. It is predicted that 20 years from now there will be 25 million people above 65, or one in 8 or 9.

Accurate insurance figures tell us that we can take any group of 100 men age 25 and can accurately predict that 36 of them will be dead before the age of 65; fifty-nine of them will be dependent upon something or someone for assistance and support. Four of the 100 will be well off financially. One will be wealthy.

Obviously, as we think about this matter, we are challenged into being especially concerned about the 59 who will be dependent upon something or someone for assistance and support at the age of 65.

"If we are going to be concerned about this group of people we must ask the question, 'What are the problems of old age?'

"The first problem is that of age restrictions on employment.

"Many companies have a policy not to hire people over 45. Look at the want ads of many newspapers and you will discover that many times they indicate the desire for people under 45. Somehow we have developed a phobia in our country against hiring people over 45 and from all evidences this problem will not decrease. Medical science has increased our average age to 68. Too often, however, this increased age becomes an affliction and a penalty for survival.

"The barriers that keep a person over 45 from finding employment are relatively few.

"There are cultural barriers. Somehow we as Americans have the crazy idea that age in terms of years is the same as physical or mental age. This is not so. We have to consider individuals and their abilities rather than turning them down immediately because of their ages in terms of years.

"Very often there is a reluctance to change professions. A man may have been employed as a woodworker all of his life and he will not accept anything but woodworking employment.

"And there is that barrier against hiring people over 45 set up by industry and labor unions. Day after day many unemployed people leave employment offices and union hiring halls with the phrase, 'you're too old,' ringing in their ears. Many times industry falsely feels that older men cannot produce as much as younger men, or labor unions aren't willing to consider a reshuffling of an employe to a position where he may be of more value to his employer, and thus he risks unemployment.

"We have become so accustomed to the idea of planned obsolescence that we have come to include people in this category. Certainly it is not God's will that men should 'eat the bread of idleness' long before the productive years of life are really at an end.

"A second problem of old age is that of insufficient income.

"Three fourths of all retired workers rely primarily upon social security for their basic income.

Many couples are restricted with a limitation that they are only permitted to earn a certain amount and still be able to receive social security payments. The result of this is that many elderly people living in areas of high rent, taxation, and living expenses are caught in a squeeze of low income versus high prices.

"A third problem is that of inadequate housing. Primarily because of the inflation which has hit our nation, the homes being built today do not contain the 'spare rooms' that they once did. This problem is further complicated by an ever increasing birth rate.

"The alternative to meeting basic housing needs is to reject elderly people in employment, in social positions, and in family. Drive them into insanity, and then build more wings on the state homes for the insane. It seems rather contradictory for Christians to believe in the promise of Christ, that 'In my Father's house are many rooms, in terms of eternity; and yet still be willing to tolerate the conclusion that there is 'no room in the inn' at the present time for many elderly persons still physically living.

"A fourth problem concerning old age is that of meaningless leisure time.

"The dream of idly sitting on a bench in a city such as St. Petersburg, Fla., with nothing to do but 'sit' is not the dream of a man whose mind and body have been active all of his life. To condemn ones own physical soul to such a judgement is beyond the understanding of a thinking person.

"The final great problem concerning the elderly is that of illness and the high cost of medical care.

Medical advances have lengthened our lives to be sure, but they have likewise added to the expense of our days upon this earth. Many persons over the age of 65 who face chronic illness have great financial difficulty in meeting the expenses involved.

"What can be done about all of these problems? First of all the problem of employment restrictions.

"The solution to this problem is relatively simple. We must redefine the word old. We must no longer judge age by the calendar but more so the ability of the individual.

"We must permit people to continue to work if they are able to do so. The time has come when we must realize, for example, that all but six of the Presidents of the United States were over 50. Seven of them, including President Eisenhower, were 60 or more. Certainly if we can trust people in this age with the highest office in our land we should certainly be able to entrust them with other positions.

"God called Paul in the middle years of his life to become the greatest missionary of all time. He sent an Albert Schweitzer to Africa to set up a hospital in which he still labors in spite of his advanced years. Certainly Jesus in calling his own disciples did not judge them on the basis of their age. Rather he judged them on the basis of the qualifications which he felt they had for the task before them. We should do likewise in judging a person fit or unfit for employment.

"In regards to the matter of insufficient income, we must permit people to work beyond the ages of 65 if they are willing and able to do so. It seems rather ridiculous to say that all men must cease working at 65 as an arbitrary rule when actually many of them could go on for many years. We likewise need to enable them to earn more before stopping their Social Security payments.

"In regard to the matter of housing, there are many things that need to be done. Relatives need to see their responsibility for the aged and they need to be lovingly concerned about them rather than always trying to find an institution to take care of them.

"Jesus, in the midst of His suffering upon the cross, looked down and seeing His mother in her need then said to His friend, "John, behold they mother". Jesus desired that she be taken care of in spite of His own suffering.

"And we need to assist those who can afford to own their home to have the opportunity to purchase reasonably priced housing.

"With respect to leisure time, we need to train people to make adequate use of their leisure time. They need to have the opportunity to be of service to their fellow man in their moments of leisure.

"In regards to the matter of illness we need to come to the point in our land where we see that the geriatrician, that is the doctor who takes care of the aged, is as important as the pediatrician who takes care of the very young. We need to explore constantly the methods of rehabilitating elderly people to moments of useful service in their community.

"The problems confronting the aged are extremely great. But we as citizens, whether young or old, need to see the truth of the Psalmists statement when he said 'they still bring forth fruit in old age.' If granted the opportunity many human beings can bring forth fruits of productivity in old age, to the end of their days."

CALLS FOR RESEARCH

KINGSTON, Pa., (AP)—Churches should do more research into human motivations in connection with religion, says James W. Carty Jr., journalism professor at Bethany college, Bethany, W. Va. He told a meeting here that industry spends 11 billion annually on research to explore new frontiers of understanding, but the churches spend only $100,000 for research.

Vespers Attended By 175 Persons

Rev. Hoffert Delivers Talk On Forgiveness; 50 More Present This Year

A sermon on forgiveness was delivered at the annual community vesper services at Memorial park Sunday evening by the Rev. Richard G. Hoffert, pastor of Grace Lutheran church.

Approximately 175 persons attended, or 50 more than last year, Pastor Hoffert said.

He spoke on "Lord Forgive As We Forgive" as the president of the Pottstown Ministerial association, which sponsors the annual service.

The brass ensemble of the Salvation Army played at the service.

PASTOR HOFFERT based his talk on the Gospel of St. Matthew, chapter 18, verse 27: "And out of pity for him the lord of that servant released him and forgave him the debt."

The minister said, "One of the greatest stumbling blocks and yet one of the greatest signs of the Christian faith is forgiveness.

"There is a Spanish proverb which says, 'To return evil for good is devilish; to return good for good is human; but to return good for evil is God-like.' Among the Pennsylvania Germans there is the pointed and short admonition, 'Forgive and forget.'

"But all too often these things are more easily said than done.

"Two neighbors had a quarrel and for years were not on speaking terms. Finally one became ill and the families decided to try to bring about a reconciliation of the two neighbors. The sick neighbor was visited by his former friend. The two greeted each other and shook hands. As the neighbor was about to leave, the sick man remarked, 'but remember this, if I get well, this doesn't count!'

Often Christian forgiveness is as shallow as that! And yet the central message of the saving Gospel of Jesus Christ is complete forgiveness!

"We cannot recall a single Bible character of any importance in which the Heavenly Father's forgiveness is not the the climax and turning point in that person's life. Remember Noah, Joseph, Jacob, Moses, David, and Jonah? Recall our Lord's own example and teaching, 'Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy'; 'Thy sins be forgiven thee'; and 'Father forgive them for they know not what they do.'

"Think of the famous teaching of the Prodigal Son — the wayward, wasteful, and extravagant young man who finally returned to his father's forgiveness.

"Recall the story Matthew 18, of the servant who was forgiven but yet could not forgive his fellow-servant. When it became known that the forgiven servant did not practice forgiveness, he was recalled and sentenced. 'So also my heavenly Father will do to every one of you,' said Jesus, 'if you do not forgive your brother from your heart.'

"When the human mind and heart become aware of God's great forgiving love, then personal forgiveness on the part of individual believers must follow, not merely as a duty but as a blessed privilege. Gratitude expresses itself best in acts of love and mercy to our fellowmen — 'He who loves God must love his brother also.' There cannot be the one without the other.

"Where such expression of gratitude is not found and practiced, there God will deal, not according to His mercy, but according to His justice. When we pray 'forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us,' it is hoped that our forgiveness of our fellow man is as complete as that of our Lord toward us.

"In the world about us there is a hesitancy to practice the Gospel of forgiving love because it must start with the individual rather than the group. We are usually for something if someone else goes along, but when we must stand alone, it is often a different matter.

"In Matthew 18, the forgiven servant neglected to apply his forgiveness by God to his daily life. Too often you and I are guilty of receiving the forgiveness of our God but not applying it to the little instances in our daily living. We could do a great deal better in this respect.

"If God only forgave as we forgive, our life in this world would be much worse than it is now! But thank God He does not forgive in the puny, short-sighted manner in which we oft times forgive, but rather in the fullness of His godhead in the person of Jesus Christ.

"Thank God for the wideness in God's mercy through which we can feel forgiven and at the same time find courage and strength to expand the horizons of our own forgiveness among our fellowmen."

For Thou, Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favor wilt Thou compass him as with a shield.—(Psalm 5:12)

Those who love God and obey Him, who worship and glorify Him in all their thoughts and acts, are overflowingly filled with His love and His guidance; they know abundant joy and strength beyong all mortal compare—because the Almighty is with and within them.

Graham Sees Recurrence of Persecution

WASHINGTON (AP)—A waning Christendom, with Christians fleeing into caves and catacombs to escape persecution was predicted Sunday by evangelist Billy Graham.

It was the last day of Graham's eight-day national capital crusade in Griffith Stadium.

But communism will not triumph and Khrushchev will never rule the world from Washington, Graham told 24,000 people. The meeting brought the crusade attendance here to an estimated 139,000.

Graham criticized the present "strange concept" of Christianity in the United States, calling it a combination of paganism and true Christianity. "People laugh at us," he said, adding Christianity is becoming more and more a minority religion.

"I believe the time may come," he said, "when we Christians will have to go underground again, into catacombs as in the days of Rome." Christians will suffer persecutions at the hands of those who are filled with "the spirit of anti-Christ," he said.

Graham left later for Rio de Janeiro, where he will address a world meeting of Baptists.

Baptist Congress Opens in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP—The 10th congress of the Baptist World Alliance—first ever held in Roman Catholic South America—opened Sunday in a huge indoor stadium, site a week ago of a Brazilian beauty contest.

The alliance president, Dr. Theodore F. Adams of Richmond, Va., reported in a prepared speech to an estimated 10,000 Baptists from all over the world that their Protestant sect was growing rapidly despite what he called persecution and lack of religious freedom in many countries of the world.

Dr. Adams said Baptists continue their fight against racism in the world and reported particular progress in the Union of South Africa.

Huge Zern Barn Destroyed

OWNER WATCHES BARN DESTROYED — Warren B. Zern, left, looks on as flames roar through the barn on his 65-acre farm off North Charlotte street. The heart-broken Zern said he dropped a $20,000 insurance policy on the barn only June 13. His total loss is estimated at $50,000. The Pottstown contractor said he has no plans to rebuild the large structure. "The whole thing makes me feel sick," he said. "What's a farm without a barn?"

END OF BUILDING The billowing cloud of smoke that rose over the 65-acre farm of Pottstown contractor Warren B. Zern when flames gutted his barn Sunday evening could be seen as far away as Macungie in Lehigh county. Thousands of spectators flocked to the farm just over the borough line along Route 663 to witness the blaze. The fire was under control 45 minutes after it started, but 3½ tons of smoldering straw kept firemen at the scene until early this morning.

but 20 firemen were still at the scene playing water on 3½ tons of smoldering straw early this morning.

Zern, obviously stunned, watched from the yard of his home just over the borough line off Route 663 as firemen battled the inferno less than 60 feet away.

"I dropped the insurance on the barn just two weeks ago," he said.

"I figured there was little sense in paying $400 for insurance since I'm not farming any more. And besides, I never have any fires here."

"So I dropped the insurance," he kept repeating. "I never have any fires here."

THE BIG barn had been insured for $20,000. The structure consisted of three adjacent sections—the main barn measuring 70 by 45 feet, an ell measuring 60 by 35 feet, and a machinery shed 60 by 30 feet.

Zern said the barn cost $22,000 when he built it in 1946. Much of the equipment he had stored in it was sold at an auction on the 65-acre farm May 4.

Zern's wife, hugging a small black poodle, paced nervously up and down the lawn in the midst of the frantic activity all around her. She and several neighbors were unable to check their sobs as they watched the flames devour the structure.

Of the half dozen firemen felled by the intense heat, four were rushed to Pottstown hospital in Goodwill ambulances. At least two others were given oxygen at the scene.

TREATED AT the hospital and released were Ralph Kulp and Paul Seasholtz of the Philadelphia Steam Fire Engine company and John Andrus and Robert Baer of the North End Fire company.

Harold Moyer, assistant borough fire chief, said "things were so hot when we got here that I ordered some of the men to play a hose on the pumper nearest the barn."

"When a barn goes up in flames like that," Moyer said, "all you can hope to do is save the other buildings on the property. We kept a blanket of water over the house until there was no danger of the fire spreading."

Water to fight the blaze was supplied by a pond some 200 feet from the barn. The pond, which measures approximately 150 feet long and 25 feet wide, was practically emptied by the time the fire was extinguished.

"Thank God for the pond," Zern mumbled several times during the evening.

FIRST TO arrive on the scene was the North End Fire company, which brought 40 men and two pieces of equipment.

The Ringing Hill Fire company followed with 25 men and two pieces of equipment. Chief Tascione then called out the Sanatoga and Upper Pottsgrove companies. Sanatoga sent 20 men and a pumper; Upper Pottsgrove sent 25 men, a pumper and a tanker.

Tascione said Sunday night "the response on the part of all firemen involved was terrific. They did a magnificent job."

WOMEN FROM the auxiliaries of the Ringing Hill and Upper Pottsgrove companies served refreshments throughout the night, and were still there early this morning.

Another fire on a vacant lot owned by Zern at Diamond street and Feist avenue brought out pumpers from the North End Fire company and the Philadelphia Steam Fire Engine company Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The only thing damaged in that blaze was a couple bales of hay. Borough Fire Chief Richard Moser said he will investigate reports that "three or four children were seen smoking in the area" today.

CHILD INJURED

Richard Strunk, 2½, of 624 Wilson street, was treated at Pottstown hospital Saturday evening for a cut of the right hand. He was released after being treated.

Victim of Burns Termed Satisfactory

Bruce Bauer, 24 King street, was reported in satisfactory condition at Pottstown hospital Sunday night, where he is recuperating from severe burns suffered when his clothing caught fire as he poured gasoline into the carburetor of a car.

The accident occurred the past Friday at the home of the victim's brother, Harold, 381 Potts court.

Bauer, 24, suffered burns of the chest, back and right arm.

The auto on which he was working had not run for several weeks.

HURT IN FALL

Richard Lohagen, 447 North York street, was treated for a head injury received in a fall Saturday at 4:30 p.m. Lohagen, 18, required four stitches to close a wound of the forehead at Pottstown hospital. He was released following treatment.

2 Year Old Boy Injured in Fall

Two year old Edward Alex, 439 High street, was injured Sunday at 2:30 p. m., when he fell on stones.

Five stitches were required to close a wound on the palm of the left hand at Pottstown hospital. He was released after treatment.

CRASH REPORTED

Mary M. Grofe, 385 North Charlotte street, drove a car which struck another vehicle Sunday at High and Evans streets. Mrs. Grofe was making a left turn from High street at 11 p. m. and told police she couldn't stop in time to avoid a crash with a vehicle driven by James E. Fox, Gilbertsville.

Commissioners Find They Own Disputed Land

EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — County commissioners here have found they already own 230 acres of land they'd been dickering for two years to buy from the federal government.

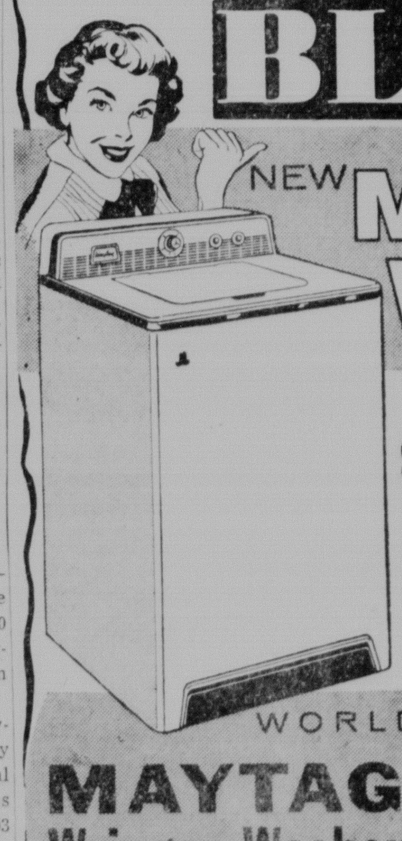

It seems that when the government deeded the county some land years ago the legal description took in 1330 acres but the deed listed only 1103 acres.

In the campaign to buy the additional land for county purposes, the commissioners had gotten officials to agree to sell the 230 acres for $28,000 and had even made a $600 down payment —which will be returned by the government.

Life was Peaceful— Then Tornado Hit

bach's main road.

Young Jim Smiley was walking from his house to his kennels at the bottom of the Smiley yard. He was preparing to feed his ten dogs.

Across the street, to the west, Joan Super noticed a storm was coming. She saw the first huge dark thunderclouds above the hill to the west, over the Silver Crest orchard.

JIM SMILEY'S yearling horse was restless, circling in a corral beside the Smiley house.

Mrs. Harold Moser was in the kitchen of her home at Niantic, to the east. She was washing dishes, and her husband and oldest son, Harold Jr., were milking in the Moser barn.

Next door, Janice Sheetz, 15, and her brother Ronald, 14, had finished dressing to go away. Their parents weren't quite ready, and they decided to wait in the car, parked between their house and the Moser home.

Mrs. Edgar Blankenbiller Jr. called her four children inside and took down the wash at her home on Green Hill road, near the corner of Green Lane

FARTHER EAST, Mrs. Florence Reihman was home alone, her husband Frank working at the B. F. Goodrich company in Oaks.

Mrs. Reihman awakened from her daily nap about 15 minutes early, and was fixing herself some supper.

Ralph Schoenly, a farmer between Blankenbiller's and Reihman's, was just ready to bring his cattle inside for milking.

East of Reihman's, Mrs. William Singer Jr. herded her three youngsters in from the barn to get cleaned up.

THE CURTIS Imbody farm, separated from the Singer farm by several acres of woodland, was quiet. The family was eating dinner.

The thundercloud blotted out the sun over a wide area between Eshbach and the Imbody homestead. The wind became gustier, and people scurried to close windows.

Joan Super watched the gusts topple several vases of flowers from window sills at the rear of the house.

Joan and her brother, Bill, started to clean up the water spilled on the floor.

Suddenly, from the midst of the thundercloud, a finger-like cloud lashed out with a twisting funnel of whirling air.

MRS. WAGONHURST was probably one of the first to realize Eshbach was experiencing a tornado.

"I was fixing supper, and when the wind started, I went onto the porch to bring some things inside so they wouldn't blow away.

"I had all the windows down, and I noticed my husband was just pulling into the garage.

"I looked out the front then, and saw the clouds gathering into a funnel up the hill. I'm telling you, it was a frightening thing.

"Suddenly it sounded like a hundred airplanes passing over, and I heard glass flying all over the house. I toyed with the idea of leaving the house, but stayed in the rear. It was over as fast as it started."

* * *

AN ENORMOUS pine tree at the corner of the Wagonhurst's sunporch was uprooted and fell striking the corner of the sunporch roof, cracking the walls inside.

Mrs. Wagonhurst said if her husband had arrived a moment later, his car would have been struck as it pulled into the driveway.

The moments of terror everywhere were miraculously moments of good fortune. Those who suffered damage in almost every instance missed injury, death or greater loss by moments.

Joan Super said, "I wasn't worried after I got the dogs inside. I just watched everything from the window.

"Two apple trees, two pine trees and a cherry tree beside the house were blown down. My dog box weighs about 150 pounds, and it went up in the air and came down with a crash and broke.

"When it began, the windows were down, but the door was open. I left it open so our pups, Wally and Jerry, could come in from the yard.

"Then Bill and I couldn't close the door, but we finally did. The chickens were shielded by the barn wall, and they weren't even hurt."

The youngsters were alone. Their mother, Mrs. Ethel Super, and sister Claire, were at work.

The Super clock stopped when the electricity went off. Joan said the lights failed the moment the storm hit. The clock read 5:25.

* * *

JIM SMILEY was inside his dog kennel, feeding his dogs, when the tornado struck. He managed to force the door closed, and decided to stay put.

Jim watched with anxiety as a 140 year old barn was pushed over, missing the horse.

"I thought about doing something with the horse, but I decided to stay where I was.

"The whole kennel was shuddering and shaking. Things were flying past outside. Then I heard the trees snapping off, and some of them were bent over to the ground.

"The corral blew away entirely, but the horse kept running in a circle as if the fence was still there.

"My mother was inside yelling for me, but she didn't know I was all right. There wasn't even a noise until things started coming apart."

Descriptions of the noise accompanying the tornado ranged from Mrs. Wagonhurst's "100 airplanes" to Smiley's "there wasn't a sound. Others heard whistles, roars, shrieks, thunder and hissing.

THE TORNADO ravaged the property of Mrs. Conrad Weiser, it blew down a barn next to where men sat calmly drinking beer in the Eshbach hotel.

The roof flew off the Devon Knitting Mills, and the skipping twister left everyone in Eshbach with a few moments to remember forever. Not a property escaped damage, although most was restricted to broken windows and wrecked roofs.

Heading east, the tornado caught the Raymond Nell farm out in the open, hewing the top floor from Nell's three story home.

It passed over Route 100 and skimmed into the orchard at the Fox farm. Hoffman was in the bottom of a silo.

THE CATTLE were in the field just 10 minutes after being milked. Previously they were being fed behind the barn.

The tornado leveled the great barn to the floor, littering the feeding yard with debris. A shed in the path of the twister was shattered, and slate from the roof knifed through every window in the front of the Hoffman house.

Mrs. Hoffman said, "The children (Beverly, 4, Brian, 2, and Timmy, 1) were just playing in the front room about 20 minutes before. We left and were parked in the car up at Mr. Fox's farm at Eshbach when it (tornado) went through.

"The whole house was covered with glass when we got back. The lamps were blown into different rooms. We were just lucky we weren't home."

Hoffman said he didn't even want to talk about it. When he went into the silo, there was a barn. When he came out, the barn was gone.

THE TORNADO didn't harm Fox's cattle which Hoffman had fortunately let out into the fields.

Climbing the slight rise toward Niantic, the twister flattened fields of wheat like a giant had been sleeping on the land. Foot high corn was leveled, but the farms of Charles Hoffman and Robert C. Hoffman were missed.

From there, the violent storm crossed high tension power lines, but didn't harm them, and began littering the hilltop with debris: limbs, metal, slate, a dead leghorn hen, wire fencing.

The next one to get it was the Howard Moser Sr. farm on Congo Niantic road, where damage wasn't too heavy.

MRS. HAROLD MOSER was in the kitchen of her house with five of her children. The evening meal was finished, Mrs. Moser was washing dishes, and Denise, the youngest child, was sitting near the sink in a highchair.

Janice and Ronald Sheetz were sitting outside in their father's car. The tornado struck.

Mrs. Moser said, "Everything got so confused I didn't have time to think. The windows began breaking in, and I moved the baby away from them.

"I heard things falling down the stairs, but I didn't know our roof was off until my husband ran in and told me.

"My husband and son Harold Jr. were in the barn milking when it hit. As soon as it was over I knew what it was—a tornado.

"You can see we'd have lost the shed, too, but the tractor and manure spreader held it up."

JANICE SHEETZ looked out the front window of the car, which had the windows closed. "This thing began, and I saw the porch chairs go up the street, and into the air, then into the trees.

"I looked the other direction and saw the roof lift off Moser's garage and fall on their car.

"My mother had been yelling for us, but my dad wouldn't let her come outside, so they went to the cellar.

"There were all kinds of objects flying past the car, and a big stone felt on the roof and broke the dome light right over my head."

"I was too scared to hear a thing. I just watched it and couldn't do anything. I'm just lucky I'm alive."

SAMUEL SHELLAWAY was on his back porch in Niantic village. The sky was grey, and the little flags in the cemetery at the Christ Lutheran church were waving in the breeze. Shellaway looked across the hill to Moser's farm and saw the tornado take the barn and house roofs into the air, shred them into junk, and let them down.

Roofing tin from Moser's barn was twisted around power lines nearly a half mile away. "It ripped the roof up like paper," said Janice. She saw the funnel chew into the forest east of Moser's.

The Hiryak and Eidle farms on Green Hill road missed the intensity of the twister, which flattened a swath several hundred feet wide through the woodland near Green Lane and Green Hill roads.

Trees were uprooted, others stripped of bark, there were boulders overturned, and trunks of huge trees were tangled as if someone had reached down and twisted them, like wringing out a cloth, until they snapped.

The Blankenbiller home, a solid building once a schoolhouse, was in the center of an area of woodland now flattened.

Blankenbiller was on his way home from work at Carver's dairy, and saw the tornado from Route 100, but didn't know his family was in danger.

His wife said, "I couldn't tell there was a storm coming when I brought the kids inside. (Donna, Keith, Karen and Mary)

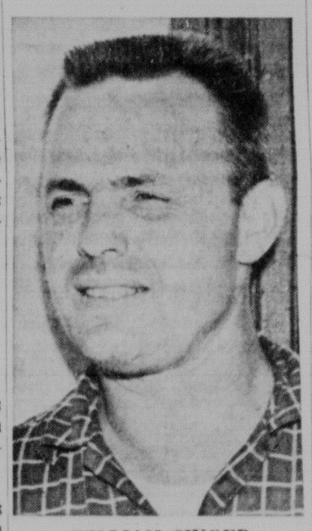

"I turned the television on for them and went upstairs. When I got up there, the sun wasn't shining anymore and it looked like bad weather.

"I put down the window, and Karen, who's three years old, yelled she was going to bring the rugs in from the front porch.

"I was worried about the wind by this time and went downstairs. By then the electric was off, and the TV set wouldn't work. Karen had all the rugs inside already, and I helped her close the door.

"We were all together in the hall when it hit, and too nervous to know where else to go. The hall's in the middle of the house and seemed safest.

"Donna (Donna is 6) was worried about the bunny shed and her bunny, Whitey. I thought I saw it go, and I said to Donna, 'oh, there goes the bunny shed.'

"Donna started to cry and then said, 'No I shouldn't cry. We should pray.' And she knelt and started to pray about the house being all right."

"Then the whistling and the wind stopped, and outside there were just some trees down. Whitey was fine and Midnight the cat had gone through it on the porch. Dick, our other cat, disappeared, but came home later."

AROUND A BEND in the road to the north, a settlement of homes wasn't touched. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Blankenbiller Sr. saw the warning signs of a storm.

Mrs. Blankenbiller, mother-in-law of the other, said, "When I was 18 I was a waitress at a dance hall in Spring Mount, and the roof was blown right off from over our heads.

"I watch out for these things now, so I got inside and closed up. My husband went into the back porch, and before he could close the door, the newspapers were pulled outside.

"He tried to pull the door to, and it dragged him down three steps. We got it shut by working together.

"It was all as fast as blinking the eyes. It was a funnel all right, and whirling. It seemed to come apart and get back together.

"It seemed to have tongues reaching out, and I never saw anything like it."

EARL BRENSINGER, of the High View orchard, and Luther Russell, neighbors of the Blankenbiller Sr. family, saw lumber flying past in the air.

Mrs. Harvey Swineheart described the tornado's course as "zigzagged."

Mrs. Blankenbiller Sr. picked up pieces of linoleum from her yard which she says doesn't belong in her house.

Her daughter-in-law has inherited a large milk-glass basin —intact—which fell from the skies onto the lawn.

FROM THIS point on, the twister didn't stray far from Green Lane road.

Part of the roof at the Ralph Schoenly farm (north side) was ripped off and strewn across the south side of Green Lane road.

It uprooted several huge trees just to the east of the William Benner property, struck at the Edmund Gehman residence, and continued down the south side of the road, tearing through the meadow.

The wind moved Mrs. Reihman to go outside and close the windows. She went out because she was in a hurry to get the windows down, and plants were in the way from the inside.

"When I got to the door to close it behind me," Mrs. Reihman said, "it wouldn't go shut.

"You can't do anything but try. It was windy and dark and the door was trying to pull me out and I thought oh my God, what am I going to do?

"Then I finally pulled it shut and started in the living room and the rugs were lifting off the floor. The window blew out and I thought maybe I should get outdoors.

"I thought maybe if I ran I could get somewhere. There were things flying through the air and I was so scared I didn't know what to do with myself.

"The clothes twirled around in the room, and some of them went out the windows. Then it was over.

"I stood out front and said 'oh my God, give me help. Help me, and when someone did come over I couldn't talk, all I could do was gesture with my arms.

"When I was still in the Kitchen, the window broke right in front of my face. Snap. And the glass was gone just like that."

Mrs. Reihman found the entire peak of the house was lopped off, as well as the contents of the attic. Three trees, each a foot in diameter, were twisted or broken off.

TWO POTTED plants sitting on tree stumps between the trees were not touched. The hood was gone from Reihman's truck, and the barn was crushed. Stone covered the rear of his car where a garage had been. A shed was moved off its foundation and flattened.

Two dogs came through it all with flying colors. It was the second tornado for one of them "Lassie". A pig shed was tilted, but the pogs survived, the chicken pen was safe, but a huge pear tree was down.

Reihman said the only reason the house didn't blow down was because it is of hewn logs—very old oak beams laid one upon the other.

"I've been working on this place 15 years, and its almost all gone in 15 minutes," Reihman said.

"I've put every cent I had into it, lived week to week, worked Saturday and Sunday, and this is what's left of it.

Couple weeks ago I had four rows of bush limas. Groundhog under the shed started in on them and ate every single one.

"Last week I shot the groundhog when he came out from under the shed.

Girl Scouts Safe at Camp Site As Winds Uproot Several Trees

Nearly 30 Girl Scouts and their adult leaders experienced some unexpected camping hazards Friday night—a nearby tornado and winds estimated up to 100 miles per hour.

The girls and their two adult leaders—Mrs. John Renninger and Mrs. Charles Lichtenwalner Jr.—missed the main force of the storm, but were hit with enough side effects that several trees on the Forest Glen camp site in Huffs church were uprooted.

Mrs. Lichtenwalner, of Benjamin Franklin highway, is executive director of the Pottstown Girl Scout council. She said the campsite became so dark before the storm hit at 4:45 o'clock Friday afternoon that she had to turn her car lights on to find her way into camp.

She and Mrs. Renninger, of Winding road, Lower Pottsgrove, rushed the girls to a redwood lodge. They stayed there until the storm passed over the area.

* * *

"WE DIDN'T know it was a

This week the shed blows away.

"No limas. No groundhog. Now no shed."

THE CLOCK in the Reihman house stopped at 5:28 and 41 seconds, only three minutes after the clock stopped at the Super House in Eshbach. Mrs. Reihman said the electricity went off when the storm hit.

The bed where she normally slept until about 6:45 was covered with debris and boards from the ceiling. The chimney had fallen down the attic stairs breaking the boards loose.

The Ralph Saylor home lost the front porch and part of the roof, as the tornado swept by.

Plowing [illegible] the woods north of the Saylor place, the twister seemed to change to a crushing force, bending trees over in front of it.

THE SINGER house is in a clearing, with about 150 yards of open land to either side, between Green Lane road and woodland.

The tornado churned out of the woods and the Singer home was right in its path. The barn, where children had been playing, was demolished and the roof of the house torn away and splintered. A garage was wrecked, and a stately old willow tree was torn apart.

Several other trees on the farm were uprooted.

Mrs. Singer said, "We just moved up here, and didn't expect anything like this, like the people around here do.

"Then I'm sort of glad I didn't know just what was going on. There was so much noise, and the children (Susan, 10, Donald, 8, and Mark, 3) started to run for the basement when the glass began flying.

"It was a slow realization, but when the dust began to sift down, I had an idea what had happened.

"The electricity went off, but I don't think even then we were aware of what was about to happen.

"The children had been in the barn playing with Freckles and Ebony, our two dogs. Freckles is buried in the ruins. We haven't heard him, so I guess he's dead.

"Susan was mostly worried about Buttons, her pony. Buttons disappeared, but came back later. We were concerned about the animals, I didn't realize immediately that the top of the house was gone.

"Everything under the sun is scattered around outside. Christmas decorations, Hallowe'en masks . . . we found Zorro way down in the field."

CURTIS IMBODY Jr. was the last homeowner to feel the force of the Eshbach-Perkiomenville tornado. Imbody's barn was destroyed and his house decapitated.

Imbody saw the funnel fill with debris westward across the woods, and said, "There goes Singer."

After hitting Imbody, the twister picked up its tail over the vast Upper Perkiomen valley bowl and Philadelphia Suburban Water company lake.

As a parting gesture, it touched down on Ridge road, Pennsburg RD, to crumble and carry away the silo on the Joseph Wolfe farm.

As Singer cleaned up his farm Saturday, with the help of several neighbors, he framed the epilogue for the tornado.

"Nine years I looked for a place just like this, and never thought I'd find it. Last April or May we got here, and I went to work on it.

"Have to start all over now," he said as he looked at the ruins of his barn.

"I don't think I'll rebuild the barn," he said.

"But you can replace buildings," Singer said, "and you can't replace shade."

"It'll take 50 or 60 years to grow back the shade we lost. That's the worst part.

Singer went into the woods. He pointed to where the forest was shredded by the new storm only 50 feet from the scars of a tornado nine years ago.

A tall, young maple was stripped clean, stark and white.

A PLUM OF A PROJECT

NEPTUNE, N.J. (AP)—Joseph Curto is proud of the wild plum tree he transplanted to his garden some 25 years ago.

But he doesn't call it a plum tree anymore.

The tree, through successful grafting, now bears cherries, plums, peaches and apricots.

Skindivers Aided By Seamstresses

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Skindiving members of Syracuse rescue squads no longer have to struggle like women shedding rubber girdles after deep-water missions.

That's because sympathetic members of the Syracuse Skindivers, especially the women, have been making safe, more comfortable suits for the police and sheriff's departments.

Mrs. Olive Klaver and friends went into action because pressure almost glues some types of suits to divers who have been down 60 to 80 feet.

The suits are custom made. The diver, clad in bathing suit, lies on a sheet of heavy paper which is cut to size. The suits are made of three-quarter-inch neoprene foam rubber. All seams are cemented and reinforced. About $35 worth of material goes into each suit.

Whisler Farm Sold At Public Auction

The Howard and Bertha Whisler farm on Route 100 was auctioned to a Spring City RD couple for $6000 Friday night.

The ten-acre plot and barn was sold in one tract to Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Painter during the half hour action at which several items of personal belongings were also sold.

The farm is four miles south of Pottstown on the west side of Route 100. The auction was conducted by R. T. Richards and Kenneth A. Geyer, trading as Pottstown Auction company, 111 High street.

Marjorie Ann Renninger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Renninger, Mingo, Royersford, became the bride of Harold Hewitt Russell, Camp Hill, Saturday at 2 p. m. in Grace Lutheran church, Royersford.

The Rev. John Bergstresser, officiated at the double ring ceremony for which Mrs. Edna Keyser was organist and Mrs. Elaine Rafuse, soloist.

Mr. Renninger gave his daughter in marriage. She was attended by her sister, Marlene, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Edward Emswiler, Evansburg; Mrs. William Maguire, and Robin Reinhold, both of Glenside.

As her wedding costume, the former Miss Renninger chose a gown of white silk organza with seed pearl and lace trimmed sculptured neckline and bell shaped skirt extending into a chapel train.

Her three tiered, scalloped veil fell from a circlet or orange blossoms. She carried a Bible topped with pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Attendants also were gowned in white silk organza. Bodices of the street length models were molded and styled with open neckline and short sleevs. Limeice satin sashed the deep hemmed bouffant skirts.

Their horsehair picture hats were banded with limeice satin. They carried white fans decorated with white daisies and pink geraniums.

Mr. Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry C. Russell, Camp Hill, was served by his brother, Robert, as best man. Guests were ushered by Jay Renninger, brother of the bride; Richard Calaman, Carlisle, and Fred Moder, Pittsburgh.

Mother of the bride, Mrs. Renninger, was gowned in moss green lace and chiffon with matching accessories. Mrs. Russell, mother of the bridegroom, chose a beige dress and matching accessories.

Guests were received at the home of the bride's parents.

When the bride left for her new home in Pittsburgh she was wearing an aqua sheath with white accessories.

In the Fall, Mrs. Russell will teach in Lewistown while her husband attends Pennsylvania State university. She received her B.S. degree from West Chester State college. Mr. Russell, an engineer with Koppers company, Pittsburgh, is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Hail and Rain Pelt Camp Forrest Glen But GS Program Proceeds as Planned

The first Junior comporee for Girl scouts of Junior High age turned into an exciting adventure during the weekend at Camp Forest Glen, as the camp went through the side effects of a tornado which struck the nearby area.

Twenty - three intermediates, four Senior scouts and two adults dashed for shelter at the Lodge late Friday afternoon as the darkened area was pelted by hail stones and sheets of rain.

Spirits undampened, though clothing and bedding were wet, the comporee program continued as planned. Friday night's skit night went on with flashlights illuminating the stage, for the area was without electricity until about 10 o'clock that evening.

By Saturday morning things were in order and each tent passed inspection. All intermediate scouts present earned campcraft badges by cooking meals and practicing camping skills.

All girls at camp went on a tour Saturday afternoon to view the tornado damage.

Saturday evening's campfire featured a scout's own dealing with animal tales, singing and folk dancing.

The girls hiked to the chapel in the greens in the middle of the woods to conduct a Sunday morning church service. Participating in the service were Senior scout Margie Eppehimer, Roberta Stanton, Patricia Cole, Barbara Davidheiser and Eloise Prescott.

The weekend closed Sunday afternoon after a chicken dinner was cooked over the fireplace.

Attending were Junior High Intermediate scouts: Charlene DeSantis, Barbara Hurley, Judy Bartman, Marcia Swartz, Susan Knauer, Pamela Bower, Cynthia Beasley, Patricia Cole, Anita Hollowbush, Dorothy Ann Gephart, Barbara Davidheiser, Bonnie Hutt, Roberta Stanton.

Also, Sara Jane Kirlin, Carol Lichtenwalner, Marilyn Smith, Nancy Reifsnyder, Nancy Litvin, Linda Renninger, Eloise Prescott, Monica Kriczky, Frances Chieffo and Lynn Holloway.

They were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Lichtenwalner, executive director of the Pottstown Council of Girl scouts; Mrs. John Renninger, a member of the council program committee, and Senior scouts, Gay Gross, Mary Rowland, Betsy Hoffman and Margaret Eppehimer.

Sightseers Jam Stricken Area As Residents Start Big Clean Up

thread the stricken area.

One victim of the disaster, Mrs. Frank Reihman, of Barto RD, said the "bumper-to-bumper traffic began before 8 o'clock Saturday morning and hasn't stopped yet." She made the statement at 7 p. m. Sunday.

"My sister suggested when she visited Saturday that we charge each car going by a quarter to look. That way we would have enough to pay for a new roof."

SOME SIGHTSEERS drove up Curtis Imbody's private driveway forcing him to place a blockade at the entrance. Imbody, of Barto RD, had the roof blown off his house, and his barn and silo destroyed.

Utility company personnel followed emergency vehicles into the area Friday night, cutting off electricity where wires were down, and cutting out dead sections of telephone line in order to restore facilities further down the line.

Following the first frenzied minutes after the funnel-shaped cloud, backed by winds estimated at 100 miles per hour, skipped through the lush Pennsylvania Dutch farm area, off-duty crews were being called in by telephone and electric companies servicing the area.

The Metropolitan Edison company, servicing the largest number of homes and farms in the stricken area with electricity, reported that service was normal "in all but a few scattered cases" by 4 a. m. Saturday. Crews worked through the night removing trees that had fallen across the lines, shoring up poles that threatened to topple and replacing weakened lines.

THE ELECTRIC company reported more than 100 men worked through the night from headquarters in Boyertown, Hamburg and Reading. In one hard-hit section near Reading six poles in a row were ripped from the ground, sending wind-whipped wires snapping across the street.

Telephone service in the area took a little longer to restore, but a spokesman for Bell Telephone company said service was restored in their area by noon Saturday. "Between Pottstown and Pennsburg," the spokesman noted, "only 30 telephones were reported out of order as a result of the storm."

Supervisors surveyed the damage Friday night and early Saturday morning in preparation for repairs by cable crews called in from their days off. Lack of more serious damage was attributed to the manner in which telephone lines are strung.

The actual lines are attached to a heavier wire constructed to withstand up to 2200 pounds of pressure. It is these strong lines that are attached to the poles, the spokesman explained. "So while a tree falling across the wires would put a great strain on them, it is rare that the main cable snaps. The line that did snap in each of the 30 cases is the line from the main cable to the individual house."

CONESTOGA TELEPHONE company, which also services the devastated area, reported more serious damage, but a company official reported "normal service" by noon Sunday.

Jack Shingle, wire chief foreman in Boyertown for the Birdsboro-based utility company, said that "the worst hit sections in our area—Bally, Niantic, Sassamansville and Eshbach—had the majority of service restored by Saturday night at 9 o'clock. The more scattered damage was repaired by noon today (Sunday)."

All available troubleshooters were called in Friday night after the first reports of the storm, and cable and line crews were called in early Saturday morning. All crews worked until Saturday night, and several crews completed the repairs Sunday morning.

Only two main cables were split—both when poles were uprooted, Shingle reported. The biggest damage was caused in Niantic when "almost every house lost service." The second cable split, temporarily ending service in Congo.

"But in most cases it was the drop loop—or line from the cable to the house—that was downed by falling trees," Shingle noted.

SHINGLE, A 36-year veteran with Conestoga, called the damage caused by the storm "the second most extensive I've ever seen." The most extensive damage, according to Shingle, was caused by another tornado which roared through Boyertown about 25 years ago.

Water service in the area is supplied mainly through wells and springs. Several residents, however, reported debris had gotten into the water, necessitating a thorough cleaning before the water can be used without boiling.

The resumption of electric service by 4 a. m., and the availability of water, made cooking no problem—if the kitchen was in condition to be used.

Once electricity and telephone service was restored, the problem became one of cleaning up, putting on new roofs and planning for new farm buildings to replace those destroyed or beyond repair.

BUT FOR the farmer, the immediate problem in dollars and cents, was salvaging Summer grain crops. Haldeman said that corn crops would ripen if only the leaves were nicked, but expressed the belief that the damage was much more extensive.

Some patching of roofs was already underway. Crews with pitch and tarpaper worked all day Saturday on the Devon Knitting Mill, Eshbach, despite the fact that operations will be suspended "indefinitely."

Homer Reiter said Sunday night that damage was so "severe" to the plant that "we won't be able to resume work for quite a while. We will be closed indefinitely while repairs are being made to the roof and wall and new stock is brought in."

The Eshbach plant employs about 60, and manufactures 'T' shirts. Among its customers is Macy's Department store, one of the largest department stores in New York.

ON THE Imbody farm a temporary plank roof was constructed to protect some of the bedrooms from the weather. Part of the roof of the 161 year old house remained uncovered, and the rest was covered by two tarpaulins supplied Friday night by the Green Lane Fire company.

Most fire companies in the area responded with tarpaulins following the storm. Among these were: Bechtelsville, East Greenville, Pennsburg, Perkiomen township, Birdsboro, Boyertown, Gilbertsville, New Berlinville, Sassamansville, Red Hill, Bally and Barto.

Local Veteran Reveals List Of Nazi Crimes

public pinpointing of 18 other war criminals, besides Dr. Mengele.

The world has not been told of Dr. Mengele's crimes, but a Polish newspaperman saw them and wrote the story for Spivack.

SPIVACK CAN'T recall the Pole's name, but described him as "short, slender, well educated and a former newspaper editor in Warsaw." The man was an interpreter for the Nazis.

He disappeared, probably behind the Iron Curtain, but before doing so left his accusations in Spivack's hands.

First on the list of Nazis "who took delight in their jobs, doing their work not just because they had to" is Dr. Mengele, chief physician at Auschwitz II.

The Pole's exact charge is that Dr. Mengele was "responsible for the organization of mass murder. He did, for years, the dirty job of selections (victims to be burned or gassed).

"He also is responsible for the 'scientific' experiments made on healthy people. Millions have been murdered during his office."

DR. MENGELE'S method, according to the story, was to sit back in a chair as herds of naked men and women were forced to pass him.

The Nazi gripped a pencil in his fist, with one pencil end sticking straight up. When a prisoner passed who was no longer valuable (couldn't work), Dr. Mengele's thumb flicked down on the pencil.

"The doctor never had to say a word, but each flick of the thumb meant a prisoner was yanked out of line for the extermination oven," said Spivack.

Spivack learned that Dr. Mengele and other S.S. (storm trooper) officers fled in a two-engined plane from Pokking, Lower Bavaria, just before capture.

CAPTURE WAS almost certain since Spivak and his forces met the Russian Army at the Elbe river and they mopped up what remained of Nazis in Lower Bavaria.

Spivack said he was familiar with the type of plane that hustled Mengele to exile. "The plane couldn't have carried more than a dozen men, but there are 19 men on my list. I'm fairly certain the Russians caught some of the suspects and killed them instantly," he said.

Spivack said the plane carrying Dr. Mengele and others (possibly even Adolph Eichmann, a Nazi captured a few weeks ago) flew a course from Lower Bavaria, to Spain, the Azores, and Venezuela before landing in Argentina.

That and other information was elicited by Spivack, who speaks German and got people to talk by offering them food, clothing and cigarets.

"THE ARMY had a non fraternization law. But I was out to get answers to questions that arose from seeing concentration camps," said Spivack.

Besides Dr. Mengele, Spivack's list accuses these Nazis, none of whom he knows were caught:

S. S. Oberstrumfuhrer Dr. Thielo, also a physician at Auschwitz II. He is accused of doing the same as Dr. Mengele with the exception of medical experiments."

S. S. Untersturmfuhrer Klein, who "selected women and children and directly led them into an oven."

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Buntrock, "a callous, sadistic murderer whose job was to drive selected people into gas trucks."

S.S. Blockfuhrer Kaiser, who "assisted" Buntrock.

S.S Untersturmfuhrer Konig, who selected people to die.

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Flagge, who "did not have the courage to protest what he saw." Flagge did try to save the wife and the child of Spivack's informant, but failed.

S.S. Sturrmann Kohler, accused as Flagge.

S.S. Obersturmfuhrer Dr. von Helmersen, who selected victims for death.

All the above were at Auschwitz II. The following were at a concentration camp at Prague:

S.S. Obersturmfuhrer Gunther, "responsible for expatriation of the Czechoslovakian Jews."

S.S. Hauptschaarfuhrer Fiedler, "organizer of transportation for prisoners all over Czechoslovakia."

At the Teresin concentration camp were:

S.S. Obersturmfuhrer Dr. Seidl, camp commander. He "is responsible for execution of 18 innocent young men."

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Haydl, who was Dr. Seidl's "assistant."

At the Ohrdruf concentration camp were:

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Steinwitz, "famous as an executioner with or without a weapon."

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Miller, charged as Steinwitz.

S.S. Unterschaarfuhrer Theuer, whose "sport was to beat a sick man until he stood up. When the sick man was upright, Theuer beat him again until he fell down and died."

S.S. Untersturmfuhrer Dr. Greunuss, camp doctor. During his medical duties, "4000 out of 10,000 healthy men died in six months."

S.S. Unterfuhrer Pawlik, charged with "assisting" Dr. Gruenuss.

Spivack, head of the Pottstown Jewish War veterans, declared, "The actions of those men was not uncommon during the war. It happened every time men forgot about God."

Refuse Collector Says Pottstown Residents Most Cordial He's Seen

After 4½ months as Pottstown's refuse collector, William J. O'Hara is convinced that "Pottstown residents are the most cordial I have ever had dealings with."

O'Hara, of King of Prussia, was given a five year contract to dispose of the borough's garbage, trash and ashes on Feb. 9. The owner of Sanitary Landfill, incorporated, he will complete and cover the present dump on Moser road and then move on to the Schulz industrial development site at Yost road and Firestone boulevard.

He finds things "working out as I anticipated when I took the contract." In fulfilling the $75,000 annual contract O'Hara, uses two trucks six nights a week—often on 12 hour shifts.

He isn't able to determine whether the contract will be profitable this early, "But I certainly hope it will be. So far maintenance cost has run a little higher than expected, and I've had to replace some equipment."

THERE HAVE been some complaints, O'Hara admits, "but my forman or general manager has gone over to see the person, and everything has worked out satisfactorily." Thomas Doyle, of Yarnall road, is foreman, and Jacob Diehl, of Belmont Terrace, is general manager.

O'Hara hasn't had any unusual experiences in servicing Pottstown, "After all, I've been in business for 18 years, and I don't think anything would surprise me at this point."

Diehl echoed O'Hara's opinion of the Pottstown people with whom he has come in contact. "They're most cooperative . . . very fine people," he said. "We couldn't ask for them to be any nicer."

The feeling seems to be mutual. Borough manager Robert H. McKinney Jr., said the "reports on O'Hara have been excellent. We are completely satisfied.

DOYLE WAS foreman for Thomas Merkel, Layfield road, former borough refuse collector. O'Hara also hired Merkel's collection crew, and has continued the collection schedule used by his predecessor.

A 14-ton diesel tractor and blade is being used to spread and compact refuse at an estimated 15 to 20 feet depth. Joseph Pipps, King of Prussia, is the bulldozer operator.

Policeman Fires Shot In Morning Chase

Motor Patrolman William McCann fired a shot in the air early this morning in an attempt to halt two youths who took a car from Jacob Sovia, 1159 Cherry street.

McCann was on routine patrol in the Cherry street area when he noticed the boys. Several minutes later he saw them near the Sovia car. They hopped in and fled. He followed them and when the youths noticed they were being followed they stopped the car in Edgewood cemetery, near Keim street and fled. McCann then fired the shot, but the youths didn't stop.

The car continued to drift through the cemetery, crashed an iron picket fence, crossed High street and hit into Worth Motors, 970 High street.

Man Shot in Back Remains Critical

A Limerick man who was shot in the back during a family argument a week ago remained in critical condition at Memorial hospital Sunday night.

The hospital reported, however, that Albert Kehler, Possum Hollow road, was showing "very slight improvement."

Police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A PRETTY LASS answered an ad for a secretary, but came back home in high indignation. "The man who interviewed me came up behind me and deliberately pinched me," she reported, "so I slapped him in the face and walked out."

"I wouldn't have done that," mused the mother. "Why didn't you report him to the head of the firm?"

"Mama," explained the girl, "the man who pinched me is the head of the firm."

Two lads from the deep South were tooting merrily along the highway in a battered jalopy when the driver suddenly jammed on the brakes. The boys shuddered as an express train thundered by a scant six feet before them.

"Whatcha blow that horn for?" gasped the passenger.

"I didn't," answered the driver. "That horn you heard was Gabriel's!"

Steelers Stop Previously-Unbeaten Spring City 9, 5-2

IN THERE CHIPPING—Arnold Palmer chips out of a slight rough on the fourth fairway in the International Canada Cup golf match at Portmarnock, Ireland. Palmer, U.S. Masters and Open champion, staging one of his patented comebacks, shot a final 3-under-par 69 as U.S. team of Palmer and Sam Snead won the team championship with a total of 565. England, with 573, was second.

Belgium's Von Donck Claims Individual Title

Palmer Saves Canada Cup for US

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland (AP)—A patented blazing comeback by Arnold Palmer saved the Canada Cup for the United States Sunday but failed to keep Belgium's Flory Van Donck from snatching the individual International golf title from hard-luck Sam Snead.

Young Palmer, tightening up a game that at one time threatened to fall in tatters, finished with a three-under-par 69 but Snead, with the individual crown in his grasp, fell victim of one of his renowned blowups for a final round 75.

The Americans wound up with a team total of 565, eight shots better than fast-closing England at 573.

Australia's defending champions came in third on a 71 by Kel Nagle and a 75 by slumping Peter Thomson with Ireland fourth at 575 and South America fifth at 578.

VAN DONCK, a dapper socialite of 48, put together four steady rounds of 68-71-70-70 for 279, which beat out the faltering Snead by two shots. Palmer's fine climactic round tied him for third place at 284 with Harry Weetman of England and sent him on to the British Open championship at St. Andrews with renewed hope and confidence.

Van Donck, who twice before had missed this title by a shot, was at the clubhouse watching the scoreboard when Snead went into his sad collapse on the finishing nine.

Snead started the day three shots ahead of his Belgian rival and when he knocked in an 18-foot birdie putt at the first hole it appeared to the record gallery of 30,000 that he could walk easily to the individual title.

But he took successive bogeys at the ninth, 10th and 11th holes, principally because of poor putting, and when he shook the cobwebs out of his head he knew he had his work cut out for him.

THE SLAMMER from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., needed a birdie on one of the last seven holes—normally no difficult task for a golfer of his stature—to tie the individual pace-setter.

The roof feel in on Sam at the 192-yard 15th. There, badly in need of his par, he hooked his tee shot into a craggy embankment at the left and then, from a sidehill position, chipped to within 10 feet. He missed his putt.

By this time things were getting desperate, but there was no hope for Sam, who has blown a half-dozen U.S. open championships with a similar unlucky windup. He missed a 3½ footer to take a five at the 16th and this was the clincher.

SOX STREAK ENDS AT FOUR IN C-M PLAY

Myers Halts Leaders At Enterprise Field

By DUKE DeLUCA
(Mercury Sports Writer)

Spring City's uninterrupted forward march toward the Legion Junior Ches-Mont league crown room was halted abruptly Sunday.

Pottstown's Steelers tossed a 5-2 block into the path of the parading Red Sox at Enterprise field, forcing the Sox to do a complete about face and canceling their impending cakewalk orders.

The Hose had reeled off four successive wins in as many outings and figured to continue the streak at the expense of the treadmilling Steelers. But some gritty pitching by Jim Myers plus a handful of early runs disrupted the Sox plans.

Myers, a chunky southpaw who blanked Collegeville in his only other starting chore, survived a shaky beginning to post a five-hit triumph.

* * *

WILDNESS PLAGUED the deliberate delivery man through the first three innings but he shook it off to retire the side in order in three of the last four frames.

He remained solvent in the first and second despite his showing of generosity in the free ducat department.

Myers walked two in the first and walked the bases full in the second after Paul Youngblud reached him for a single.

A double play—engineered by Myers—kept him safe in the second. His strikeout of Mark Hennessy eased him out of the first.

THE RED SOX finally managed two in the third on two hits, another base-on-balls and a throwing error, but the Steelers had provided a three-run working margin by this time.

Johnny Miller, the submarining Spring City starter, ran into trouble in the very first inning but can only be partially blamed for the Steelers' opening score and their pair of markers in the second.

After getting leadoff hitter Bruce Ricketts to ground back to him, Miller walked Pete Millard. Bill Logan reached on a fielder's choice in which Miller threw out Millard at second but Bob Goodhart singled through shortstop and Logan raced all the way home when leftfielder Youngblud's throw went out of play.

The Steelers got rid of Miller in the second after the right-hander walked Barry Swartz, threw Bobby Yeager's sacrifice bunt away—permitting Swartz to score — and walked Jim Clements.

YEAGER MOVED to the plate on Hennessey's passed ball but reliever Joe Guber set the side down without further woe.

Guber, also a rightie, turned in four creditable innings. The

Boyertown Legion Takes Pair; Tops Carver Unit

An 11th-inning error by Carver (Reading) shortstop Dick Binder gave the Boyertown Legion a 7-6 extra-inning victory Sunday, allowing the Bears to sweep their weekend series with the Berks league rivals.

The Bears, who face Shillington this afternoon at Gablesville, won the Saturday end of the bill, 14-4 at Penndora, boosting their Today's game will mark the rained-out opening date with the Blue Sox. Game time is 5:30.

Dan Boyer, who had a pair of relief stints, won both games. He took over from Ronnie Houck and worked the final three frames of the Sunday tilt, allowing but one hit and three free tickets.

Vic Tucci was safe on an error to lead off the 11th for the Bears. Dewey Johnson was hit by a pitch to push him to second, and Tom Reitz' single scored the decisive tally. There were no outs at the time.

* * *

PITCHING-STAFF fatigue worked in the Bears' favor in the Sunday tilt. The visitors, attempting to work the same three hurlers in both games, relieved starter Joe Fleishood in the sixth.

This opened the gates for five Bear tallies in the seventh, which gave them a 6-5 lead entering the eighth. Both teams had been scoreless in the first five frames, and traded single runs in the sixth.

Carver notched Boyertown starter Bill Woolwine for four runs in the top of the seventh on four singles and a fielder's choice.

The Bears came back with two Annie Oakleys, a single by Marty Weiser, Tucci's double and a triple by Ron VanPelt, coupled with a wild pitch for five tallies.

Dick Woolever took over the pitching chores for Carver, and dueled Boyer for three innings before running into trouble in the 11th.

He was charged with his third loss against one win. As a result of both relief stints, Boyer now has a 3-0 slate for the year.

Area Yachtman Cops Three Heats At Miles River

ST. MICHAELS, Md., (AP) — A Pottstown, Pa., yachtsman won three of four heats in the 39th annual Miles river yacht club regatta Saturday to win both the class C and D Utility races.

Richard Rees, 656 Walnut street, lost by only a half length in the first go-round of the D Utility class to John Schedel of Secaucus, N. J., then came in first in the other D heat and two C heats.

Ralph W. Yost Jr., Church road, Limerick, collided with the racer piloted by Donald Christy, of Baltimore, in a warm-up race. Though Christy was knocked unconscious, he remained in the race. Christy was last year's high-point champion.

Yost suffered numerous cuts and bruises in the crash, but did not require hospitalization.

Dave Emerson, 17-year-old yachtsman from New Castle, Del., also won two events in the brand new hydroplane he got as a high school graduation present. He won the stock hydro and a utility outboard classes the first time he tested the new racer.

Sachs Escapes Injury In Colorado Accident

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., (AP)—Eddie Sachs, 32, who took part in the Indianapolis Memorial Day race, narrowly escaped death Saturday when his car flipped twice and crashed into a grove of trees.

Sachs, testing the Pikes Peak hill climb course for the July 4 auto race, was not injured. He continued his drive later.

His car hit a tree with the back end, another with the front and a third tree trunk rammed through the cockpit of the car.

Arnold Captures Reading Feature

READING (AP)—Chuck Arnold, of Standford, Conn., won the 30-lap feature ARDC-USAC midget auto race Sunday on the half mile clay track at the Reading fairgrounds.

Arnold, driving a Jake Vargo Offy, lead all the way. The race had to be restarted when Wayne Doerstler, of Baltimore, spun out in the second lap.

Rudy De Blase, 33, Syracuse, N.Y., was taken to Reading hospital with both legs fractured after his car jumped the guard rail and hit a utility pole in the second heat race. Rescue crews had to remove the steering wheel, the right front wheel and several smaller parts on his car to get him out.

Ernie McCoy, of Reading, was third, behind Bill Randall, of North Reading, Mass.

PRACTICE NOTICE

The Pottstown Optimists of the Knee-Hi B league will practice tonight at 6 o'clock at the Far fields.

Phillies Split With Cardinals

GONZALEZ' BLOW IN 12TH WINS OPENER

St. Louis Rallies For Nightcap Victory

Philadelphia (AP) — Right-hander John Buzhardt pitched hitless ball for 9 2-3 innings after a shaky start Sunday in leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-2 12-inning victory over St. Louis.

The Cardinals came back to win the second game of the double-header 4-3 on Hal Smith's three-run homer in the ninth inning. It was his first home run of the season.

The Phils won the first on Tony Gonzalez' home run off reliever Ernie Broglio with one out in the final frame. Gonzalez also had figured in earlier Phils' scoring.

In all, Buzhardt gave up five hits while winning his fourth game of the season.

Joe Cunningham opened the second inning with a home run for the Cardinals and from then until Stan Musial singled with two out in the 11th Buzhardt didn't allow a hit. In the interim he gave up two walks to Bill White and one to Musial.

The hitless string was the best in the majors this year.

Buzhardt, obtained from the Chicago Cubs in an off-season trade, has shown promise all season but blisters on his pitching hand have kept him from a peak performance.

The 24-year-old Prosperity, S. C., resident made the Cards hit the ball and received good fielding support. He struck out only two.

Buzhardt gave up a home run to Curt Flood and a single to White in the first inning and after Cunningham's home run appeared in for a rough afternoon.

US Olympic Unit Boasts Abundance of Sprinters

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Like an oil-well heeled Texan trying to decide what color Cadillac to drive to the bank, U.S. Olympic authorities this week have a problem induced by prosperity.

Next weekend in Palo Alto, at the final Olympic tryouts, they've got to settle the question of who will represent the United States in the sprints at the Rome games in August.

And, no matter who gets the tickets to Rome, there'll be boys boarding buses for home who probably could make any other Olympic team in the world.

The National AAU championships held here over the weekend failed to diminish the dilemma.

RAPID RAY NORTON of Santa Clara Youth village won the finals in both the 100 and 200-meter dashes, covering the former in 10.5 and the latter in 20.3 around a curve.

While Norton appeared to have regained his form, few would concede him a double victory at Palo Alto.

There he'll run in to Charlie Tidwell of Kansas, who didn't compete here, plus such fast company as Paul Winder of Morgan State, Stone Johnson of Grambling, Dave Sime of Duke and the 1956 double gold medal winner, Bobby Morrow of Abilene, Tex.

Morrow seemed to clear up the picture somewhat Friday night by failing to qualify in the 100.

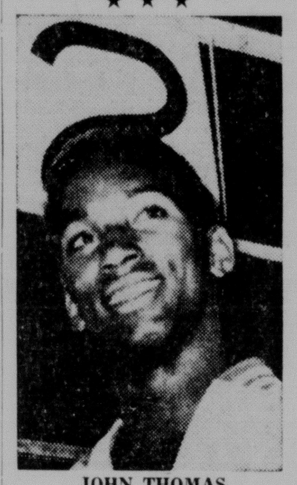

His performance in the 200 Saturday night was scarcely spectacular, but he did manage to qualify for the Palo Alto tests in that event.

THE UNITED STATES is confronted by a similar abundance of talent in some other events, including the pole vault. There was a six-way tie for first in that competition.

One World record was surpassed here, and the fact that John Thomas did it was a source of little amazement. The 19 year old Boston university sophomore cleared 7 feet, 2 inches, improving his previously pending World outdoor record by a quarter of an inch.

Redlegs Belt Faltering Giants in 10-4 Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP)—A barrage of 12 hits backed up Bob Purkey's pitching in the Cincinnati Reds' 10-4 victory over San Francisco Sunday.

Even Purkey, not rated a slugger, got in on the assault, singling in two runs.

Aside from Orlando Cepeda's leadoff homer in the eight, the moon-faced Redleg right-hander had little trouble scattering 11 Giant hits.

San Francisco put over one final marker in the ninth on two singles and Willie Kirkland's double before Purkey squelched the rally.

The Reds needed only three singles in the third inning to take a four-run lead. Giant starter Jack Sanford gave up a run on two singles and a wild pitch. His successor, Johnny Antonelli, had even less success, doling out three walks and Purkey's two-run safety.

A triple by catcher Ed Bailey in the fourth drove in two more Reds runs. Two singles around a steal added a Cincinnati run in the fifth and Wally Post wrapped up the Reds' slugging production with an eighth inning homer.

The teams had traded two runs apiece in the first inning.

The Giants, under interim manager Tom Sheehan, twice trimmed Cincinnati in a series here before losing Sunday.

Kenilworth gained a half-game on the leading Shamrocks via a 18-5 Junior league win over Frosty Sunday at Memorial park.

The defeat completed a bad weekend for Frosty, which lost by forfeit to the Raiders in a scheduled Saturday tilt.

Tony Catanzaro and Bud Plask held Frosty to four hits while their teammates pounded three pitchers for 12 hits and runs in every inning but the fourth.

Ted Schoelkopf led the parade with three hits and five RBI. Plask and Ray Leaver had two each.

SOX STREAK ENDS AT FOUR IN C-M PLAY

Steelers nicked him for two runs in the third as Nick Petro hammered a single to right center with two men aboard and Swartz squeezed home Goodhart, who had been hit by a pitch.

But Guber registered goose eggs in the fourth and fifth before giving way to Denny Ferguson, who worked the seventh.

The Red Sox only flurry came when Gary Ebert singled with one gone in the third.

Tom Taylor followed with a walk and Jack Williams dumped a single into right plating Ebert. Taylor also countered when Ricketts uncorked a wild heave on the Williams bingle.

The loss created a two-way tie for the league's top spot. Both the Sox and Phoenixville now own 4-1 marks. The Steelers occupy the third slot with a 3-2 record.

Belgian Pair First In LeMans Endurance Test

LE MANS, (AP)—Belgium's ace driving combination, Oliver Gendebein and Paul Frere, Sunday spend a 12-cylinder Ferrari to victory in the Bone-wearying Le-Mans 24-hour endurance classic.

Leading almost from the start, the Belgian pair coaxed their sleek red factory-backed racer just fast enough to outrun a field of Maseratis, Jaguars, and Aston-Martins without breaking down itself.

Threats from Jaguars and Maserati failed early in the race and while the British Aston-Martin stuck to the end—to gain third place—it was outclassed.

The chief threat came from the privately-entered, second place Ferrari of 18-year-old Richardo Rodriguez of Mexico and his co-driver Andre Pilette of Belgium.

Although three laps behind, the exuberant Mexican youngster was trying to pass the winning Ferrari as they swept into the final lap with some 200,000 people lining the 13,461 kilometer (8.36 mile) track.

It was also a second Le Mans crown for the smiling Gendebien who won here with Phil Hill of Los Angeles in a Ferrari in 1958.

The official statistics showed the winning Ferrari covered 2,619.086 miles at an average speed of 109.128 miles per hour. This was just slightly below last year's figure.

Despite three hours of rain which made the track dangerously slick Saturday, there was no serious accident.

Beaver-Gavin Duo Wins Scotch Play

Mrs. William Beaver and Morris Gavin teamed up to capture the first of a monthly series of Scotch foursomes Sunday at Brookside country club.

The Mrs. Beaver-Gavin combine chalked up 64 points in the Powell system-conducted affair to finish four higher than a pair of second-place towsomes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaner and the Mrs. William Teasdale-Lee Saettle team wound up deadlocked for runner-up honors with 60 points.

Third place went to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Levitz, who posted a 54 total. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Guldin's 50 was good enough for fourth.

NATS EARN DOUBLE WIN OVER TIGERS

Pitchers Lee, Moore Lead 4-2, 7-4 Triumphs

DETROIT (AP)—The Washington Senators swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers Sunday getting superb relief pitching from Don Lee and Ray Moore in 4-2 and 7-4 triumphs.

A trio of ex-Tigers made major contributions to the twin losses that made it seven defeats for the punchless Tigers in their last nine games.

Former Tiger Lee pitched four-hit ball over the last four innings of the opener to save Pedro Ramos' victory. Moore bailed another former Detroiter, Bill Fischer, out of a jam in the second game. A former Tiger infielder, Reno Bertoia, had a pair of hits in each contest, including a two-run homer that iced the nightcap.

The Senators barged in front with four runs in the first inning of the second game. They hit starter Paul Foytack with four singles and a double, chasing the Tiger veteran for the ninth straight time.

Fischer made it 5-0 against Hank Aguirre in the second with his first major league home run.

Al Kaline's double and Frank Bolling's single gave the Tigers a run in the second, but Fischer cooled the Tigers on one single until the seventh, when Kaline and Bolling again hit safely.

Saettele Heads Qualifying Play For Seniors Go

Lee Saettele turned in a sizzling one-over-par 73 to lead all qualifiers for the upcoming Seniors tournament, which will be played on the Brookside country club course.

Saettele figures to get plenty of opposition from Jack Tinkler, Charles Knisely and Dr. Ellis Kohn in the tourney, which is limited to a field of "over 50" players.

Match play in the first round must be complete by Saturday, with the second to be played July 5-9.

The first 16 qualifiers will play the tournament at scratch, (no handicap). The first eight who are defeated will play another defeated eight at handicap.

The "third eight" will play at 85 percent of difference of handicap.

Also upcoming on the Brookside course is the Jonathan Thorne trophy tournament, two rounds of 18 holes each at handicap. It will be played between July 2 and 4.

New Bronx Bomber

Newest Bronx Bomber is Roger Maris, 26 year old outfielder procured by the Yanks from Kansas City last December. Maris, in his fourth year in the majors, is leading the American league in homers and RBI and is second in the batting race. Roger's grip is camera subject at right.

Maris Leads in HRs, But Yanks Lose 1st Place In Twinbill Split

CLEVELAND (AP) —Cleveland pushed across an unearned run in the 11th inning of the nightcap Sunday—on an error by Roger Maris—and defeated New York 7-6 after the Yankees won the opener of the doubleheader 6-2 on Whitey Ford's four-hitter.

The split knocked the Yanks out of first place as Baltimore beat Kansas City 9-2 and grabbed a one-game advantage, six percentage points in front of New York.

Despite his costly error, Maris did about all he could to keep the Yanks in the second game. He hammered two home runs, his 21st and 22nd, and got a run-producing single to drive in four runs and up his league-leading RBI total to 58. He also drove in a pair in the opener.

The Indians tallied the winning marker off Johnny James fourth New York pitcher. Hank Foiles singled and, with two out, pinch-hitter Bob Hale doubled down the right field line and the ball rolled past Maris.

The victory before 57,261—the largest of the season in the American League—was a well-earned win for Jim Perry (8-3). He pitched 6 2-3 innings of relief after starter Jim Grant blew a 4-0 first inning lead.

Perry limited the Yanks to only three hits, one of them Maris' eighth inning homer that tied the score at 6-6. The 23-year-old right-handed ace struck out four and walked only one. He had hurled four innings in a starting role against New York Friday night.

The two games were a sharp contrast. In the first, Ford (4-5) held the Indians in check except in the fourth inning when Vic Power singled and Tito Francona cracked a home run.

That cut Ford's lead to 3-2, but New York added three more runs off Ted Bowsfield (3-3) in the sixth to wrap it up. Bobby Richardson's two-run double was the key blow of that uprising.

Birds Recapture AL Lead on 9-2 Win Over Kaycee

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Chuck Estrada pitched a two-hitter and Jim Gentile drove in seven runs with a pair of homers Sunday as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Kansas City Athletics 9-2 and swept a three-game series.

The victory, coupled with the New York Yankee split of a twin bill with Cleveland, lifted the Orioles into first place in the American League. Baltimore leads the Yankees by six percentage points.

Estrada (8-3) had a no-hitter going until the eighth inning when Bill Tuttle got a leadoff single and Andy Carey hit his sixth homer for the A's.

Gentile's homers were his ninth and 10th and he became the Orioles' leading RBI man, going one ahead of Ronnie Hansen with 48. Both of the clout's ere off starter and loser Dick Hall (5-3).

Gentile got his first in the sixth inning after Gene Stephens was safe on an error and Gene Woodling singled. His second came in the next inning following a double by Marv Breeding, a single by Stephens and a walk to Woodling.

Woodling also homered for Baltimore, getting his sixth in the ninth inning behind Stephens' single.

Estrada a right-hander, struck out seven and walked seven. Hall gave up 10 hits to the Orioles before departing after seven innings in favor of Bob Trowbridge, who finished up.

Branson, Jones Share Milwaukee Sprint 50s Wins

MILWAUKEE, (AP—Don Branson of Champaign, Ill., and Parnelli Jones of Gardena, Calif., Sunday shared honors in the sprint car program at State Fair park.

Branson won the second of two 50-mile races at an average speed of 101.5 miles an hour—a record for all types of competition on the one-mile paved track, including Indianapolis Speedway cars.

Jones won the first event at an average of 94.496 MPH. The first race was slowed by three spinouts on the North turn, each causing the caution light to be on for five laps. No one was injured seriously.

Finishing behind Branson in the second race were Jones, A. J. Foyt of Houston, Elmer George of Indianapolis and Leon Clum of Wapakoneta, Ohio.

In the first race Branson was second, George Third, Foyt fourth, and Tony Bettenhausen of Tenley Park, Ill., fifth.

A crowd of 5,457 saw the first sprint car program here since 1949.

Branson did not take the lead in the second race until the 38th mile when he and Foyt passed Jones.

CHISOX SWEEP SERIES WITH TWINBILL WIN

Pale Hose Edge Boston In Opening Tilt, Take Late Game, 21-7

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox, playing like defending champions once more, crushed Boston 4-3 and 21-7 Sunday for a sweep of their four-game series with the last-place Red Sox.

The double triumph, gained behind veteran pitchers Billy Pierce and Early Wynn, gave the White Sox six victories in their last seven starts and put them one game ahead of their pennant winning pace of 1959.

Pierce drove in a pair of runs and limited the Red Sox to five hits in the opener as he gained his sixth triumph against three losses.

Wynn, recording his fourth triumph in 10 decisions and his second success in five days, had no trouble after his teammates scored 11 runs in the fourth inning for an 18-1 lead.

The 40-year-old right-hander had a no-hitter going into the fifth when Boston scored three times, two of the runs coming on Frank Malzone's seventh homer.

Police Capture Payroll Robbers

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Police Sunday announced the capture of four ex-convicts wanted for what they called Europe's biggest payroll robbery since the end of World War II.

They said the quartet broke into a safe at a big chemical plant in Basel, Switzerland, April 8 and got away with 640,000 Swiss frances—about $155,000. The men—a German, a Bulgarian and two Poles—were picked up last week in Frankfurt and Weil, a small German town near the Swiss border. Police said none of the money has been recovered.

STEEL FIRM ENGINEER DIES AT 78

South Keim street.

He left the borough to take a position with the Philadelphia department of public works and then went to France in World War I. Mr. Jones commanded an engineering outfit and saw action in the Argonne and in St. Mihiel.

By 1920 he was back with McClintic-Marshall and the firm sent him to India. Mr. Jones was in charge of erecting a steel mill at Jamshedpur and had full charge of American and Indian workers in the three year project.

HE RETURNED to the United States and became assistant chief engineer, with offices in Pittsburgh but with frequent trips to Pottstown.

Those borough visits were prompted by mighty engineering feats being done in Pottstown The work and Mr. Jones' time here were for the George Washington bridge (1928-1931); the Golden Gate bridge (1933-1936) and the Chesapeake bridge (1952).

During those years, McClintic - Marshall merged with Bethlehem Steel company and until retirement eight years ago, Mr. Jones headed the fabrication division of Bethlehem Steel.

Also during those years, he went to Australia to bid on the Sidney harbor bridge. He didn't get the contract, but was married in Australia.

* * *

MR. JONES was born in Lewisburg and was a son of the late Jonathan and Mary (Bliss) Jones. He was an ardent gardener and an avid golfer. He also was the author of many articles in technical journals.

Surviving with his wife, Dorothy, in Bethlehem, are two daughters, Mrs. Paul Dale Riverside, Conn.; Mrs. C. Laurence Stevens, Pittsburgh, and eight grandchildren.

Services will be 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Snyder Funeral home, Bethlehem. Interment will be at noon in Westminster cemetery, Philadelphia.

Family Pet Gives Warning Of Tornado

cheerful self.

Mrs. Reihman mentioned the story to a neighbor who explained the background for Lassie's action: About ten years before the Reihman's purchased the house, a tornado hit. The roof of the barn was blown away, and the barn caught fire when lightning struck.

"Lassie's owner, in the barn at the time of the tornado, was killed by a falling beam. His body wasn't found until after the fire was extinguished."

Since that time, Mrs. Reihman said her neighbor told her, "Lassie has always cringed when a storm is brewing."

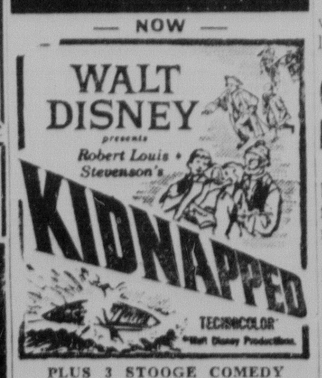

"I've never known Lassie not to have those symptoms," she explained Sunday, "before a storm hits, and we've had a lot of storms in the past five years."

* * *

THURSDAY NIGHT Lassie's radar sent out a storm warning. By the time Reihman returned from work, the Collie refused to leave a dark corner of the barn even for dinner.

When no storm came, the Reihman's thought that Lassie "had finally missed one." The symptoms continued Friday with Lassie leaving the barn for a spot besides a wood pile.

Friday afternoon the tornado hit—and the roof of the same barn was torn off.

Senior Citizens Face Problems Of Boredom, Financial Worries

What life awaits retired Pottstonians? They have sudden and long standing issues to face as the borough's senior citizens.

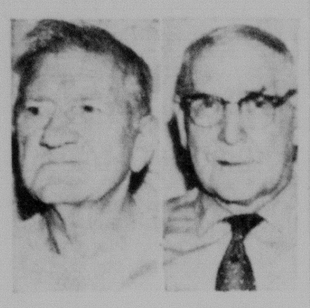

Foremost problems as revealed by a survey are methods of continuing a "sense of self-worth" and a way to make financial ends meet.

Robert S. Dalgleish, 198 East Main street, South Pottstown, noted another problem is health.

"I still have a life to make useful, but must do so with less exertion," explained Dalgleish, 71.

* * *

HE CONTINUED, "I can't say time is heavy on my hands, and thankfully, my wife, Annie, doesn't mind me around the house. With a little common sense and some budget cutting a retired man can be plenty happy."

W. H. Boyer C. W. Moyer

Dalgleish retired nearly five years ago from Firestone Tire and Rubber company. "The biggest adjustment in the first year's retirement was getting used to a budget trimmed by at least 30 percent. But I manage fairly well.

"As for keeping self esteem, I find that keeping busy is the best cure for that problem. My workbench gives me a way to fulfill any creative instincts," said Dalgleish.

Other insights into retired lives were given by the following:

CHRISTIAN S. STOUFFER, 79, of 972 North Charlotte street.

"I quit Stanley G. Flagg and company as their chief engineer three years ago and still find life is meaningful.

C. S. Stouffer

"Instead of the production problem of yesteryear, I now cope with literary matters. I've already published a history of my family, which came from Switzerland to America in 1730, and am now working on a similar, but larger book, for my wife's family.

"Doing something with purpose is important to enjoying a retirement. My first book was 130 pages and I sold nearly 300 copies. The second attempt at tracing family trees through correspondence and travels will be over 200 pages.

"Besides writing, I'm active in the First Presbyterian church. I'm glad I started both those activities before retirement. Having done so makes the work easier now. About the only new activity for me is membership in MORA club."

WILLIAM H. BOYER, 212 East street.

"I gave the world what I had in me, so retirement is no problem at all. I face no hardships, no schedules and about the only hobby I need is reading one book each week since leaving the manager's job at Western Union.

"There is one thing, however, that I do miss and find it hard to compensate for. That's rubbing elbows with top men in all the local industry. Doing so was part of my former job, and I greatly enjoyed it. I knew some angles of their businesses as well as I knew those of my own.

"But I wouldn't go back to work at four times my old salary. Retirement is sweet and I plan a trip with my wife, Eleanor, to Hawaii. As for new insights into things, well I now clean house. And not since 1911, when I married, have I realized what a housewife must do each day.

BROOKE W. WALT, 43 East Fourth street.

"I quit work three years ago to take care of my wife, Ida. Although she now is dead and I am without work things are not lonesome. I find it imperative to stay active and spread my work over the weeks.

"After nearly 30 years as a draftsman at Bethlehem Steel company, I find finances are not a particularly harsh problem now. But what I am most thankful for is the difference between me and some retired men I see on street corners.

"While I putter in a large garden, read books and work in my woodshop, many other retired people stand waiting for the Grim Reaper. With that type of outlook, I guess they already are mentally dead."

WALTER McCURDY, 66, of 311 Walnut street.

"I seem to be one of the few people who really enjoy being retired, even though it's true the government retirement benefits aren't big enough to live on. Don't misunderstand me, though, they are a great help. I retired after 31 years as an outside salesman and collector at B. E. Block and Brothers incorporated, 269 High street.

"I retired voluntarily and I think it's wonderful. How else can you get to play golf a couple days a week. In fact, I just shot 18 holes yesterday. I go around in a hundred—more or less. Actually, it's more, but it's just for the fun and friendship.

"Then my wife, Ethel, and I go out to eat a couple nights a week and go visiting. In the mornings I take the two dogs for a walk. We have a 10-year old Beagle hound named Pepper and a 3-year old rat terrier named Davy Crockett. We found him right about the time of the Davy Crockett craze.

"We also watch television—most of the soap operas during the afternoon and I help around the house. I always used to help, but now I do even more. I also do a little cooking — I did that before — and I always cook my own breakfast.

"I don't have any grandchildren yet. My son, Walter, is a junior high school teacher, and we often exchange visits. So as you can see, I really think retirement is wonderful.

"Sometimes, however, my wife thinks I'm around the house too much, and sometimes she's very happy that I'm here. The latter usually is when she needs a helping hand. But you know how women are."

CHARLES W. MOYER, 81 Brown street and Green lane Sanatoga.

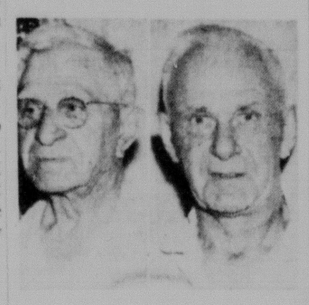

"I'm kept busy in my retirement, though I still wish I had a part time job. I've been all by myself since my wife, Sarah, died last May 2. So I've had to learn how to take care of the house and cook for myself. I've learned how to cook without too much trouble I guess, because I sure have trouble keeping my weight down.

"I raise all my own vegetables. I have a big garden—about 40 by 20 feet, and I raise lettuce, radishes, turnips, potatoes, tomatoes and beans and even corn. I do my own spading and get a good sun tan out there. I'm pretty proud of that garden.

"I live in a little bungalow, and I never realized when my wife was alive all the work she had to do.

"I worked with my son, Russell, in a grocery store he still owns in Trappe. I retired in 1956, and Sarah and I started enjoying a life of relaxation. All the children—Kathryn Dunmyer, of Sanatoga; Eugenia Messer, of Hatboro, and Russell, would come to visit with their children. There's four of them now—three girls and a boy.

"Now I watch a lot of television and play hassenpfeffer.

W. W. Brooke R. S. Dalgleish

It's a card game like euchre and pinochle all mixed up. But I still wish I had a part time job. It's hard to keep going on the government's retirement benefits. But it's not finances as much as having something to do and feeling that someone wants and needs you."
